MELLON PLAN DOOMED; NEW ONE FAVORED

Administration Loses Amendment; Simmons Offers Bill Aimed at Big Incomes

IS LIKELY TO PASS

Differences Expected to Be Ironed Out in Conference; Schedules Are Revised

(By WM. K. HUTCHINSON)

WASHINGTON, May 2—The administration lost another round today in the tax reduction battle in the senate.

Democratis and insurgent forces rejected by a vote of 37 to 36 an amendment recommended by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon limiting deductions from net income derived from tax exempt securities.

Democratic opposition to the Mellon plan for reducing federal taxes swung into action when Senator Simmons of North Carolina, minority finance leader, formally offered a substitute schedule for the tax rates proposed by the administration.

The Simmons plan, based upon a minimum normal tax of two per cent and a maximum surtax of 40 per cent, would offer larger reductions to the small tax payers and impose heavier rates upon large incomes than those proposed by the Mellon schedule.

A canvas indicated the Simmons plan would be adopted by the senate with ultimately a compromise between the Democratic substitute and the Longworth bill, passed by the house. These two measures very slightly in rates, the house bill stopping with a maximum surtax of 37½ per cent. The differences, however, can easily be ironed out in conference.

The Mellon plan was doomed to defeat—even by the administration leaders who sponsored it. Both Senator Smoot, Republican, of Utah, chairman of the senate finance committee and Senator

MORE DEATHS BRING STORM TOTAL TO 122

ATLANTA, Ga., May 2.—With the death toll of Tuesday's storm standing at 122, Red Cross workers were operating in more than a dozen different sections over the south today in an effort to relieve intense suffering by hundreds who have been made homeless and to assist in offering medical aid to more than 500 injured.

Reports coming into headquarters here today were to the effect that many of the injured victims were expected to die. Temporary hospitals have been set up at several places over Sumter-co, S. C. where the storm did more damage than at any other one place in its 1,000 mile sweep across a half dozen states.

Death from states in the stricken area today were as follows:

South Carolina 78; Alamaba 25; Georgia 13; North Carolina, Arkansas, Louisiana and Oklahoma, one each.

Reports today indicated that at least 90 of the dead are negroes.

Apple Trees Are Last to Bloom

Coshocton's first 1924 apple blossom opened, Thursday, May 1.

Practically all other kinds of fruit have been in bloom for several days. Moreover, it is an odd turn of nature that varieties of apples, as well as of other kinds of fruit, that ripen latest ordinarily blossom first. The Kelffer pear, for instance, which is the latest pear to ripen, ordinarily blossoms first, according to fruit specialists.

C. C. Graham, of this city, said that James R. Johnson, former Coshocton nurseryman, had observed that peaches in this section blossomed as early as April 13, and no later than April 27. This year the first peach blossom was reported April 15.

Each Vote Cast Tuesday Cost County Over $3.50

Only 1,499 Votes Cast—Election Cost Taxpayers Total of $5,300 in This County

From figures obtained at the office of the board of elections today it was learned that the total expense connected with carrying on the primary election Tuesday in this county alone was approximately $5,300.

A total of 1,499 votes was cast. Each vote cost the county an average of slightly more than $3.50.

There were 28 voting places in the city and 54 outside the city, a total of 82 in the county.

Six clerks are required for each voting place, five of whom get paid $5 per day, and the presiding judge receives $4 extra. Thus, it can be seen that in the city alone the employment of clerks cost $952.

In the county the clerks are paid the same, but a mileage of 20 cents is allowed. In some of the voting places outside the city the total expense incurred amounting to as high as $39.

Besides the employment of necessary clerks, there is the expense of printing the ballots, renting the voting places, etc.

Compromise is Expected Before Actors Strike

NEW YORK, May 2.—There will be no general strike of actors June 1, with its consequent disastrous effect upon the theatrical business of the country, it was predicted in authoritatively informed quarters today as the producing managers association met to discuss the crisis.

What probably will happen, it was said, is this:

1—The managers will decide, first of all that a strike must be averted.

2—The issue with the Actors' Equity Association will be compromised and a ten year agreement signed.

3—The compromise will mean, it was said, that theatrical companies for the next ten years will be composed of 80 per cent equity members and 20 per cent fidelity or non-equity members.

The fidelity members are mostly comprised of stars who resent the idea of working under a union contract, preferring the old method of dealing personally with the management.

While officials of the equity announced they are still demanding a complete equity shop it is regarded as a certainty they will agree to a compromise on the 80-20 basis.

The unsettled conditions as a result of the present crisis is beginning to show its effect along the Rialto. Florenz Ziegfeld, who is opposed to the equity shop, announced today that the "Follies" will close May 17 because of existing conditions. The road tour of the "Follies of 1923" will terminate at Newark, May 10, and he said, the company's Pacific coast tour was cancelled because of the probability of a strike.

Treat Potatoes for Scab, County Agent Advises

County Agent G. C. Musgrove recommends that all seed potatoes be treated for scab.

"Even the certified seed that has been received by Coshocton-co farmers thru the county farm bureau," he says, "should be treated for scab. It is entirely free from scab now, but it may have been infected by handling or by placing in barns where slight infestation might occur.

"One pint of 40 per cent formaldehyde to 30 gallons of water should be used. Soak the seed before cutting, from one to one and one half hours, then spread out to dry.

"Corrosive sublimate treatment will also control scab. Use four ounces of corrosive sublimate to 30 gallons of water. Seed should be soaked from one half hour to one hour, depending upon the intensity of the black scurf. Tubers should be treated before cutting."

A weak rail which turned over under the weight of a locomotive ceused a wreck of an engine and its tender on the sidetrack just south of the Pennsylvania freight station this morning at 7 o'clock.

The engine and tender were derailed. The rail turned over while the engine and tender had backed away from the freight station after uncoupling some cars.

Columbus Youth Runs Away with Wire Performer

NEW YORK, May 2.—Police today are seeking 11-year-old Paul Pennell, of Columbus, Ohio and Alton Carl, 38, a slack wire performer in circuses, accused by the boy's father of enticing the boy from him.

Clark Pennell, the father, told the police that on April 21 the boy suddenly disappeared and he found the circus performer had also vanished.

The Pennells met Carl in Columbus several years ago and about three weeks ago Carl induced Pennell to come to New York in quest of employment and bring his sons.

Paul and Carl were great friends, according to Pennell and the performer often discussed training the boy to be a wire walker.

After the boy's disappearance Pennell returned to Columbus and discovered his wife had received a letter from Paul mailed in a town in Duchess-co, N. Y.

The letter said Carl's wife had died and left him $15,000 and he intended going to Europe with Carl where they would perform together.

Investigations are Costing $325,000

WASHINGTON, May 2.—The cost of senatorial investigations was revealed to the senate today by Senator Warren, chairman of the appropriations committee who estimated the senate is spending $325,000 on the probes now in progress.

"The least any committee has spent," said Warren "is $4,000, and the Teapot Dome inquiry has cost $56,000."

Warren's inventory was supplied after the senate had appropriated $100,000 for investigation costs.

PATHETIC SCENES AT BENWOOD WIDOW TRIES TO DROWN SELF

WHEELING, W. Va., May 2—The number of bodies taken from the Benwood mine of the Wheeling Steel Corporation, this morning still stands at 49 with 61 more bodies listed as missing. Gas, water and falls of roof stone handicap work and this morning an official announcement was made that efforts to get thru entry No. 1 had for the time being been abandoned, and efforts were being concentrated to reach the section of the mine thru entry No. 12. Exhausted rescuers were working doggedly but it would be night before they hoped to accomplish their goal.

Today a dozen funerals are to be held, following the 14 held yesterday included three triple funerals, and two double ones.

A relief fund today was swelled by a $10,000 contribution from the Red Cross, who with the Salvation Army workers have been unceasingly working to alleviate suffering among the rescuers and the families of victims.

One of the pathetic features of the tragedy was the preparation for the funeral of a body identified as Nick Podola, which came to an abrupt halt when the widow declared the corpse was not that of her husband. Of the 49 bodies removed from the morgue only one is unidentified. Mrs. John Kopiha of Moundsville, widow of one of the mine victims was yesterday dragged from the Ohio river where she had waded waist deep in an effort to end her life, thru despair over her husband's death and the fact that one child is near death from scarlet fever. She kept calling for "John" and shouted "Let me die."

France Slow to Relinquish Its Grip on Germany

By DAVID M. CHURCH

LONDON, May 2.—Premier Theunis, of Belgium, and Foreign Minister Hymans conferred at exchequerts court today with Premier Ramsay MacDonald, outlining Franco-Belgian plans for giving up economic control of Germany gradually as Germany enacts the provisions of the Dawes reparations plan.

The two Belgian statesmen had arrived from Paris last night after a series of conferences with Premier Poincare, Marshal Foch and French reparation experts.

It is understood they communicated to Premier MacDonald some of the fears of Premier Poincare regarding lack of guarantees. It is reported they indicated that Premier Poincare is willing to accept the Dawes plan in its original form if assurances are forthcoming that the British will support France in renewing economic control of Germany if the Germans default.

There is a growing feeling in England that the inter-allied reparations commission should not be allowed to interfere with the working of the Dawes plan.

Round Up Foes of Union Chiefs Injur'd by Bomb

CLEVELAND, May 2—Detectives, probing the explosion late Wednesday night, in which William O'Brien and John Nestor, labor leaders, were perhaps fatally injured and six others slightly hurt, O'Brien's automobile wrecked and windows in Euclid-av stores smashed, found conclusive evidence today that a bomb had been placed in the automobile, attached to the electrical steering gear, which was set off when O'Brien stepped on the starter. Wires and caps left by bombers were found near the Labor Temple in front of which the explosion occurred.

Nestor's death, it was said this morning was a matter of but a few hours. A second operation was to be performed on O'Brien during the day.

Detectives were preparing for a roundup of possible suspects, a list of personal and labor enemies of O'Brien, one of the most prominent leaders in organized labor in this section having been secured. A man of pronounced views, active in labor wars here and in Chicago, O'Brien had made many foes wthin and without union circles, detectives said.

Coolidge in Absolute Control of His Party

President Accepts Resignation Today of Adams, Chairman, Names His Successor

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, May 2. — President Coolidge has laid a firm and heavy hand on the Republican party organization.

Now that his nomination at Cleveland six weeks hence has been placed in category of certainties he has taken over absolute control of the G. O. P. machine and henceforth his will be the guiding hand on the steering wheel and his will be the foot on the accelerator.

The president's assumption of control has been so gradual and easy that the Republican senatorial clique that "ran" the Chicago convention four years ago have had but little voice in shaping the plans for the Cleveland conclave.

Starting inauspiciously by taking the convention away from Chicago where it was destined to go, Mr. Coolidge sent it to Cleveland. He followed this up by naming representative Theodore Burton, of Ohio, as temporary chairman and keynoter, and he topped it off today by accepting the resignation of John T. Adams, as chairman of the national committee and designating William M. Butler, of Massachusetts as Adams' successor.

Butler announced himself some

SEEDING OF CORN LATE

About Half of Plowing Done, Even Some Oats Yet to Be Sowed, Reports Show

Preparations for spring planting in Coshocton-co have progressed slowly within the past few days, due to weather conditions.

Farmers, especially those on hill land, will start planting corn as soon as the ground can be made ready. No corn has yet been reported planted in Coshocton-co. Some years, however, quite a little is in the ground by the first of May.

Almost one half of the acreage to be farmed in corn in the county this spring yet remains unplowed, according to reports from various sections.

Practically no ground has yet been plowed on the low river bottoms.

Some oats, in fact, yet remains to be sowed.

With fair weather, farmers will be busy for several days.

Brick Workers' Strike Starts on Third Week

Former employes of the Coshocton Brick Co., entered upon the third week of their strike for shorter hours and more pay Friday, with no prospects of a settlement in view.

Strike breakers have been brot in by the company, the strikers reported, and the company has shown no disposition whatever, to come to an agreement with the old employes.

The strikers contend that the wages paid by the local company are far below those paid by brick companies in the surrounding vicinity, and that the working conditions are not as good. They maintain that their demands are reasonable, and declare that they intend to continue their strike until relief is offered.

Ten Leaders of Food Clubs at Conference Here

Ten of the 12 leaders of Coshocton-co farm girls' food clubs attended the annual "subject matter" conference for food club leaders held at the county farm bureau office, Thursday afternoon. They are Mrs. Milton Anderson, of Pike tp; Mrs. E. E. Clark, of Keene-tp; Miss Sylvia Kirch, New Castle-tp; Mrs. R. H. Moore, Jefferson-tp; Mrs. E. L. Porteus, Lafayette-tp; Miss Mary Powell, White Eyes-tp; Miss Lizzie Stonehocker, White Eyes-tp; Mrs. D. C. Troendley, Oxford-tp; Mrs. G. T. Vinsel, Franklin-tp; and Mrs. W. H. Winslow, Tiverton-tp.

Miss Alma Garvin, food specialist from the extension department of Ohio State University, was present and discussed with the local leaders details of management for this year's clubs. Miss Garvin laid special emphasis upon the importance of the leaders' training demonstration teams in their clubs, to put on canning and baking demonstrations at grange meetings, lodge meetings, farmers institutes and other public gatherings. She also urged the leaders to have more teams at work at the county fair, to demonstrate to those out of touch with club work the advantages of improved standards in canning, baking and cooking.

The specialist also directed the attention of the leaders to their opportunities for establishing improved food habits in their communities, thru club activities. Important among the suggestions given by her from a score card of food habits furnished by the extension department, were that each member of a family should have a quart of milk per day, and at least to vegetables in addition to potatoes.

Argue Motion to Quash Sinclair Indictment Charging Contempt of Court; Start Today

CHARGE MUCKRAKING

Government Counsel Maintains Senate Had Power to Demand that Sinclair Testify

WASHINGTON, May 2.—Arguments on the motion of Harry F. Sinclair, multi-millionaire lessee of Teapot Dome, to quash the contempt indictment against him for refusal to answer questions propounded by the senate public lands committee investigating leases on naval oil reserves, opened before associate Justice Adolph A. Hoehling in district supreme court today.

Attorneys for Sinclair, in a brief of 10 pages, challenged the authority of congressional committees to compel witnesses to divulge private information and documents, and charged questions asked by the committee were "obviously purely attempts at political muckraking."

Government counsel, opposing the motion, declared congressional committees had full power to demand attendance of witnesses and require them to produce all documents and records and information pertinent in prosecuting the inquiry. The questions which Sinclair refused to answer were proper and highly pertinent to the oil investigation, they held.

It was apparent from the questions asked by Senator Walsh, Democrat, of Montana, the com-

BELL CO. TAKES OVER PHONE LINES

No longer now is there a Tuscarawas-co Telephone Co. exchange in Newcomerstown or elsewhere.

Last midnight the Ohio Bell Telephone Co. took charge of the Tuscarawas-co company lines in Newcomerstown, Uhrichsville, Dennison, Fort Washington, Gnadenhutten and New Philadelphia.

Mrs. Anna Lydick who has been in charge of the Tuscarawas-co Telephone Co.'s exchange in Newcomerstown will serve as chief operator for the local exchange and bookkeeper, while Blanche Bassett, chief operator and bookkeeper of the Ohio Bell exchange in Newcomerstown will now serve as chief operator of long-distance. Their positions are similar.

Miss Bassett has served as chief operator in the office made vacant on Main-st for the past several years. It was learned that the room made vacant by the Bell exchange has been a telephone office since 1896.

Since the two companies have been consolidated the offices of the Bell company will be located in the offices occupied by the Tuscarawas-co exchange over the bank on Main and Bridge-sts.

The telephone operators will remain the same. They are Myrtle Salladay, Pauline Terjusen, Mary Fortune, Mildred Tidrick and Lucille Patterson, the latter of the Bell exchange.

Rates in many instances will be increased. Rural telephone rental for business purposes has been increased $1 a month and 50 cents for residences.

Sixth St. Theatre

"JUST MARRIED"

The New York farce comedy success, "Just Married" has been secured by Manager Callahan of the Sixth Street Theatre for one performance on Friday, May 2, thru an arrangement with Jules Hurtig, the celebrated theatrical manager who has given the American stage many clean plays. "Just Married" is now on a tour around the world, after completing long and successfully runs in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and Boston. The play is the work of Anna Nichols, author of "Abie's Irish Rose." The action of "Just Married" covers seven days, the time required for a French liner to sail from Bordeaux to New York. There are many couples aboard, including two young people, who are celebrating their honeymoon and who are desperately trying to keep it a secret.

"THE COVERED WAGON"

Emerson Hough's great story of the winning of the west "The Covered Wagon" is booked for Saturday, Matinee and Night, May 3, at the Sixth St. Theatre, where it will be presented exactly as it has been shown in New York, Chicago, Boston and Los Angeles, the past season and is still running along to the greatest success ever known by a production of this kind.

"The Covered Wagon" tells the story of the opening of the Oregon trail and how the wagon train which started out to open up the vast west in 1848 divided in the desert when word of the gold discovery in California reached them and some treked south to search the placer mines for precious nuggets while others with that great spirit which founded the west trudged patiently and gravely northwestward to Oregon and with plow and shovel planted the first seeds which have flowered into great treasurers undreamed of in their aggregate wealth as the steady stream of produce continues to flow from those fertile fields and valleys.

SENATE TAKES UP GEOLOGICAL PHASE

WASHINGTON, May 1.—Senate oil inquisitors today directed their investigation into geological conditions and leases upon naval reserve number two at Buena Vista, California, a phase of the oil inquiry which has thus far been left virtually untouched.

W. W. Cutler, Jr., petroleum engineer formerly with the bureau of mines, told the committee the navy had lost millions of barrels of oil because of failure to drill off set wells in the reserve to guard against drainage and seepage.

TODAY'S BRIGHT SPOT

How many is a re-union?

There is an ancient expression about Brown's cows, which is occasionally used to show how inseparable people are. "They're all together like Brown's cows" some of the old folks say. It seems that this Brown of tradition had no cow.

But speaking of re-unions, it seems that an expression has been created that will supplant the one about Brown's cows. A reunion of an honored family in Dwight, Monroe-co, was held recently and it was thus reported in a newspaper, which is no doubt accurate and trustworthy.

"A reunion of the Rumney family was held at the home of John Finch. Mrs. Martin Finch was the only one living that was present."

"So it is suggested that "continuous, like a reunion of the Rumney family" be made a standard American expression.

DEFIANCE—A stranger in town the other day asked Silas Clark, Highland Township, if the Ku Klux Klan were to give a demonstration. He saw members of the graduating class of Defiance College in their black caps and gowns parading in Clinton Street according to the annual custom on Senior Day.

OBERLIN—Howard Shaw, of Cleveland and Everett C. Hale, of Burton, O., will be the respective editor-in-chief and managing editor of the Oberlin College Review for next year. Carl H. Prindle, of Pennsylvania, has been elected business manager.

ATHENS—The school board of Athens ruled that school sessions should start an hour later because of Eastern time. The mothers stood it for about a week and then started things. They demanded a referendum vote which showed that the dinner hour was being all knocked to pieces; Dad was mad and everything; and then the school board changed back to the old hours.

POMEROY—The will of Henry Dyke, who quarreled with his brother, burned the home of his aged parents, and then drowned himself in a well, has been set aside. Because his daughter married against his wishes, Dyke made a will the day before the tragedy and cut her off with $5. The court set the will aside and gave the daughter everything, as she was the only heir. Dyke left his property, by the will, to a fraternal lodge.

ST. CLAIRSVILLE—The absence of watches in Belmont County has become alarming, according to Auditor H. C. Finley. Tax returns show that only about one man in fifteen has a pocket or wrist time piece. All are supposed to be returned for taxation.

DEFIANCE — Alice May Burd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Burd, of Defiance, has won for herself quite a reputation as a whistling baby, although she will not be two years old until August 1. The child whistles as well as a child twice her age, but the experts fail to state how well a child twice her age whistles.

BUCYRUS—Professor F. G. Blttikofer, county superintendent of schools of Crawford county, has resigned after holding the position for eight years. He will accept the superintendency of the Union County schools on August1. Since his term as superintendent here, 12 modern consolidated schools over the county have superseded the little red schoolhouse.

LOGAN—Ralph Wood, salesman for an Athens wholesale house, was held up in daylight on the New Straitsville Pike and robbed of about $150 by two well-dressed motorists. One of them produced a gun and the other went through Woods pockets.

May Day

By MARY M'CLURE

May Day! May Day!
Merry, merry May Day!
Earth awakes and lifts her voice
Sun and moon and stars rejoice
Winter's gone and Spring's our choice,
Because she brings this gay day,
Because she brings this gay day

May Day! May Day!
Merry, merry May Day!
The sun from gorgeous bed up starts,
Aurora's magic touch imparts
A rosy light, a shower of darts,
That set aglow this play day
That set aglow this play day

May Day! May Day!
Merry, merry May Day!
Birds a-wing, their matins sing,
Flowers fair, their fragrance fling
To the breeze, glad echoes ring
Adown the dells this fa'y day,
Adown the dells, this fa'y day

May Day! May Day!
Merry, merry May Day!
All the trees in green bedight,
Nod their heads in sheer delight,
To see young Spring, in garments bright
Dance down old Winter's gray day
Dance down old Winter's gray day

May Day! May Day!
Merry, merry May Day!
Give your gold to lad and lass,
To sire and dame and all who pass
Before your strange, prophetic glass,
Oh lavish Nature's pay da
Oh, lavish Nature's pay day

May Day! May Day!
Merry, merry May Day!
The starry Night steps in once more
To tell us that your reign is o'er,
And while your going we deplore,
We know you cannot stay, Day,
We know you cannot stay, Day

May Day Finds America Peaceful Industrially

Labor Secretary Shows

BY JAMES J DAVIS
Secretary of Labor
Written for I N S
Copyright 1924 by I N S

WASHINGTON, May 1 For some time past it has been apparent that the industrial horizon of the world is slowly brightening but our own people today are proud to be able to acclaim that America is 'Queen of the May'

In practically all lines in the United States May Day" dawns upon a peaceful industrial relationship existing between employer and employe

The American workman has cause to be happy and contented Building tradesmen in all our principle cities are steadily employed at good wages Petty grievances are being ironed out and in many instances wage agreements have been signed for periods longer than a year These interests are working out satisfactory contracts and a great building program is going forward throout the country

Coal production promises to improve from month to month A three year wage agreement recently signed eliminates the possibility of any serious strikes in the soft fields for that period and the anthracite agreement assures in that branch of the industry for nearly two years

Practically all of the railway differences have been settled and today there is only an occasional road on which the shopcraft strike of 1922 has not been terminated

Here and there may be found slight industrial differences between employers and employes but none of these is of more than local significance As Secretary of Labor it is a great satisfaction to me to be able to say to the hundred and ten million persons I serve that so far as industrial relationship is concerned the country was never in better shape

Longer life and increased power are claimed for automobile wheel chains having two strands across the tire one being forced upon the other when a wheel begins to slip

PROHIBITION PARTY MEETS IN COLUMBUS

COLUMBUS, May 1—Announcement was made here that the annual convention of the Ohio prohibition party this year will be held in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium here June 4.

Delegates to the party's national convention will be named and presidential electors and a state ticket will be voted upon at this meeting it was said. Rev. Aaron S. Watkins, Cincinnati, has been selected as the "keynoter." Prescott Gulliliman, Columbus, is to serve as temporary chairman.

Following the state convention the party's national convention will be held in Memorial Hall here June 5 and 6, it was announced.

An inventor claims to make fireproof building bricks by compressing sawdust that has been soaked in a secret chemical solution.

PESKY BED-BUGS

Bedbugs lay an average of seven eggs per day. Under favorable conditions they hatch in five days of which two thirds are females. They mature to adult size and are capable of laying in four weeks. How many bedbugs would you have in a year if you left one female or egg unmolested for one year?

To rid the pesky bedbugs, you readily see how necessary it is to use a preparation that will kill the eggs as well as the live ones.

P. D. Q. has been demonstrated by the leading Hospitals, Hotels and Rail road Companies that the safest and most economical way to stop future generations of bedbugs, roaches, moths and ants is to use the new discovery Pesky Devils Quietus "P. D. Q."

A 35c package of P. D. Q. makes a quart, enough to kill a million bedbugs, roaches, fleas and moths and at the same time destroy their eggs.

Impossible for them to exist when P. D. Q. is properly used. Free a patent spout in every package to get the pesky devils in the hard-to-get-at places and save the juice.

P. D. Q. is not an insect powder, no muss or dust, does not rot or burn the bedding.

P. D. Q. for family use 35c, P. D. Q. can also be purchased in sealed bottles, double strength, liquid form.

Genuine P. D. Q. is never peddled.

Major General Will Broadcast Speech Friday

Major General James G. Harbord, United States Army, retired, and Brigadier General John Ross Delafield, president of the Reserve Officers' Association of the United States, will speak over the radio on "Preparedness Against War" on Friday, May 2, at 9:15 p. m., Eastern time.

These addresses will be preceded and followed by music from the celebrated 16th Infantry Band.

The program will be broadcasted from Radio Stations WJZ (455 meters) and WGY (380 meters) and probably from other stations. It is suggested that listeners near DKKA (Pittsburgh) KFKX, (Hastings, Nebraska) and KGO, (Oakland, California) tune in to those stations in case they have difficulty in getting WJZ or WGY, for it may be that these stations will also broadcast the speeches and music.

HOW TO MAKE A SHIELD FOR RECEIVER

Metal Foil, Metal Sheeting, and Metal Paint Can Be Used for Shield.

There are a number of methods of shielding a radio set. The most popular method is the tinfoil method. This is done by coating the back of the panel with shellac or varnish and carefully laying thin sheets of tin, copper or lead foil on the prepared surface. The varnish will cement the foil to the panel when it dries.

There are a number of objections to the use of this method. One is that the tinfoil is very thin and you are liable to tear it in putting it on. Another is that it must be put on with care or it will not have a good appearance. You will have to be very careful to smooth out the foil so that no wrinkles appear.

If the proper medium for sticking the foil to the panel is not used you may find that it will dry and peel off later on. Also this method of shielding is not very durable. Whenever you rub any instrument up against it you are liable to tear a piece off. If you construct the shield of various pieces of foil take pains to see that the various pieces make contact with each other and also make a good contact with the ground binding post.

Copper, aluminum, or any other metal that is a good conductor of electricity can be used in the form of thin sheets of a sixteenth of an inch or less. This form of a shield is much more durable but on the other hand is more difficult to put on for the apparatus must be taken off from the panel, and holes must be cut in the sheeting for the various shafts and screws that come thru the panel.

A method that I have found very effective and very easy to put on is the paint method. Secure some aluminum or bronze copper paint such as is used in bronzing radiators. Mix this paint up until it is fairly thick and apply with a camel's hair brush to the back of the panel. Do not spare the paint as you want a surface that will be a good conductor.

With any method see that the shielding does not touch any of the binding posts, screws or shafts of the instruments yet be sure that the shield makes a good contact with the ground binding post.

PLAYING SAFE

A new reporter on a daily paper was assigned to gather police news, with the customary warning as to the importance of accuracy, and the danger of libel suits, if his statements were not properly qualified. He was told that, unless facts were fully proved, it was always safer to make use of such terms as "alleged" and others similar.

It happened to be the vacation season, and the newspaper office was short-handed, in an emergency the new reported was called on to write up a society function, and this is the way he did it—

"A woman, giving the name of J. C. Jones, who is reported to be one of the society leaders of the city and claims to reside at 1749 Capital Hill-av, is said to have given what purported to be a reception yesterday afternoon. It is understood that a considerable number of so-called guests, reported to be ladies notorious in society circles, were present, and some of them are quoted as saying they had enjoyed the occasion. It is charged that Bower furnished the alleged refreshments and Stringham the purported music. The hostess is said to have worn a neckless of alleged pearls which she declared was given to her by her reputed husband."—The Topeka Capital.

OHIO OBSERVES DAY

COLUMBUS, May 1—"May Day" is being observed as "child health day" in various sections of Ohio. The observance is in response to a request by officials of the Ohio Public Health Association.

No remedy can cure all ailments of the human body, but an immense number of people suffer from aches, pains and disease symptoms when their real trouble is lack of iron in the blood. It is the iron in your blood that enables you to get the nourishment out of your food. Without iron your food merely passes through you without doing you any good; you don't get the strength out of it. There is one universally known tonic that has helped thousands because it contains iron like the iron in fresh vegetables and like the iron in your blood.

is an eminent physicians best blood prescription, standardized. It is recommended for all anaemic and run-down conditions. It has helped thousands of others. It should help you. Ask for it at any drug store.

The firsa subject arranged by Mrs. William T. Knight, was read by Mrs. Harry Strome, preceding the second paper, the work of Mrs. Winfield Scott. The next meeting of the club, in two weeks, on the afternoon of May 14, will be held in the Y. W. C. A. rooms.

The Busy Bee Missionary society of Grace M. E. church will meet Friday evening, with Mrs. Harvey Leavengood, Orange-st, rather than with Miss Dorothy Davis, as calendared.

Mrs. Charles Hahn, 1129 Orchard-st, will be hostess to the Ladies Circle of St. John's Evangelical church, Thursday afternoon, at the usual hour.

SICK WOMAN MADE HAPPY

Entirely Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Mart, Texas.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to build me up as was all run-down, nervous and sick. I ached and hurt all over so that I was often compelled to go to bed, and I had to have most of my work done. No medicine seemed to help me until one of my neighbors who was taking the Vegetable Compound insisted on me trying a bottle of it. The medicine helped me from the first, and the best of all is that I can even sew again without that awful, nervous feeling I was used to having. And I used to take crying spells, with such a blue feeling that I cannot explain. Now all that has left me. I feel so cheerful, and I have gained in weight, sleep well and eat hearty. Oh! I wish I had words to express what this medicine has done for me! I am a housekeeper and do every thing from the sewing to the washing now and it doesn't hurt me. You may use my letter in any way you wish. I will be glad to help any suffering woman to the road of health and happiness."—Mrs. B. F. BRANNON, 404 Travis Ave., Mart, Texas.

DAILY NEWS LETTER

General News and Gossip from Staff Writers At Home and Abroad

BY GEORGE T. HOOK

PHILADELPHIA, May 1 — In Hahnemann Medical College anatomy classes a mounted human nervous system is used for the instruction of students. The achievement, considered the only one of its kind in the world, is that of Dr. Rufus B Weaver, professor of anatomy at the college It represents eight years of preparation and seven months of delicate dissection

The nervous system is that of a scrubwoman who had been employed at the Hahnemann Hospital and who was considered by Dr Weaver the ideal subject for his planned dissection Upon her death more than eight years ago the body was carefully prepared in alcohol Eight months ago Dr Weaver decided the moment was opportune for his great endeavor and commenced dissection of the body, with every faculty concentrated upon preservation of the nervous system intact.

Every day in the week for seven months oftentimes from early morning until late night the surgeon proceeded with his intricate work His scalpel had many obstacles to overcome and foremost among these was the ever-present danger of the delicate nerves some barely visible to the naked eye becoming tangled In addition, there was the likelihood that crystalization from the zinc chloride preservative might have caused hardening of the nerves, to the ruin of the entire effort

Finally Dr Weaver had the nervous system free of all the matter in which it had been encased and mounted the entirety by hand on a black background A thin veneer of shellac preserves the maze of large and tiny intertwining cords

Dr William Pearson, dean of Hahnemann is authority for the statement that Dr Weavers life effort is the only thing of its kind in the world

Physicians and surgeons and the laity have much to marvel at in the bronchoscopic accomplishments of Dr Chevalier Jackson famed specialist in the removal of foreign bodies from the respiratory system His clinics here in the Jefferson Hospital attract members of the medical profession from near and far.

As is doubtless well known, Dr Jackson is the inventor of the bronchoscope, the instrument with a tiny electric light bulb on the end of it that is inserted into the lung of a patient who has inhaled some foreign body, and which has saved hundreds of lives But it is not commonly known that Dr Jackson has over a hundred of these bronchoscopes, all of different sizes, to fit variant bronchial tubes

This assortment of bronchoscopes is in the main responsible for Dr Jackson's inability to answer hurry calls from cities at a distance from Philadelphia, for if he took a number of the instruments with him there always remains the likelihood that the one needed is 'back in Philadelphia" Then, too, transportation, besides being burdensome, would menace their security

At Jefferson Instruction in the use of the bronchoscope is part of the curriculum, and ere long it may be as common in the medical profession as the stethoscope

A cure for cancer the scourge of modern civilization, is near, in the opinion of Dr Edward B Krumbhaar a member of the staff of the Philadelphia General Hospital, who recently returned after a six week special research trip to London

"We are finding the nature of cancer and laying groundwork for the study of its cure," Dr Krumbhaar declared I am more optimistic than ever this disease may finally be known and destroyed

Among the most interesting of recent developments is the discovery an artificial cancer can be created This was done by painting with tar the skin of a rat For five months the skin was painted, and at the end of that time the animal was found to have developed cancer

Following these lines it was possible to determine the origin of the disease as well as the manner in which it was caused '

If you want to keep children's hair in good condition be careful what you wash it with

Many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali This dries the scalp makes the hair brittle and terribly harmful Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless) is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing as this cannot possibly injure the hair

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified will make an abundance of rich creamy lather and cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly The lather rinses out easily and removes every particle of dust dirt dandruff and excess oil The hair dries quickly and evenly and it leaves it fine and silky bright, fluffy wavy and easy to manage

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store It is inexpensive and a few ounces will last for months Be sure and ask for Mulsified

EARLY PLANTING YIELDS MOST CORN

That corn gives best yields when planted before the middle of May in northern Ohio, a week earlier in central Ohio latitudes and two weeks earlier in the southern part of the State is indicated by 11 years tests at the Ohio Experiment Station at Wooster

In these experiments corn is planted at intervals of ten days beginning in the last week of April and continuing thru May and the first week in June

The average for the early May planting shows the largest number of bushels and the best quality After the middle of May the yield falls off rapidly The corn planted the first week of May has averaged 23 5 bushels per acre more than that planted a month later This is a drop of three pecks of shelled corn for every day the planting is delayed

The quality of the late planted corn says P A Welton associate agronomist at the Station, is inferior to that of the early plantings as it carries a much higher percentage of moisture and more nubbins

While these experiments apply directly to the Wooster, latitude 40 deg 50 min for other latitudes the dates would be earlier or later as we go south or north of this latitude About one day should be allowed for change of season for each 15 miles

BETTY LEARNS SOMETHING ABOUT THE MAKALOLOS.

"Oh dear!" Betty exclaimed, dropping the hammer and hugging her finger under her arm to keep it from stinging. "I can't see why girls can't hammer without hammering their fingers. "It's funny too, that women can't build houses. I wonder why."

"Because, they don't have to in America," laughed a merry voice, and a dear little elfin hopped up beside Betty and nodded his head. "But in Africa, you can't find a man working on a house. The women do all the house building while the men do the other work."

"Oh, Gocomeback," laughed Betty. "And don't they bang their hands?"

Without stopping to answer, Gocomeback caught hold of Betty's hand and away they sailed to Africa.

The funniest houses stood all around Betty. She had to laugh, they looked so queer.

Gocomeback found one that was just being built and they ran over so that Betty could watch the workwomen.

They had planted in a circle, just the size they wanted, poles that stuck up out of the ground about ten feet. Next, they began to weave in and out of these stakes long reeds, over which they plastered mud, which one of the workwomen told Betty was taken from the ant hills. This made a smooth surface. When the wall was finished, they plastered the floors the same way.

"That's so much better than dirt floors," said the woman nearest Betty. "In this way, no bugs bother us."

Off to one side, several women were building a queer, tall, cone-shaped thing that looked for all the world like a tall, crowned hat. When it was finished, all the women gathered around it and lifted it upon the wall, it's rim projecting out quite a bit from the plastered walls. Under this they put more stakes.

"Is that round hole in front the only way to get fresh air?" asked Betty, who could hardly believe her eyes.

"Of course," laughed Gocomeback. "When they want ventilation, they lift the hat-roof off. How would you like a house like that? When they have more guests than they can accomodate, they just lift the roof off the house and set it to one side. The guests crawl under it and are sheltered for the night, but the family have to sleep without a roof."

"Not for me," laughed Betty, and like a puff of smoke, the whole scene changed and she found herself once more in America on her own back porch. Betty laughed as she picked up her hammer and thought of the workwomen of the Makalolo tribe in Africa. "I'm glad women don't have to be carpenters in America," she mused.

MY HUSBAND'S LOVE

Adele Garrison's New Phase of

Revelations of a Wife

(C) 1924, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

The "Personage" Who Admitted Madge and Dicky to Mrs. Durkee's House.

WITH a cordial invitation from little Mrs. Bird to repeat our visit to her, Dicky and I drove reluctantly away from her charming old home.

She had pressed us to stay to luncheon, and I think Dicky would have enjoyed doing so, for his artist soul was frankly charmed with the place and its setting. But I was anxious to see Mrs. Durkee and to give ourselves plenty of time for a leisurely drive home, so we left her standing on the veranda and made our way to the picturesque road which connects Flushing and Jamaica, and from thence to Marvin and the Durkee home, stopping only at a country greenhouse where Dicky bought great clusters of sweet peas—lavender and pink—and wonderfully tinted tulips for Mrs. Durkee and Leila.

Stiff, Cold Formality.

"'Her Fluffiness' ought to like these," he said as the man wrapped them up, and in his voice was the tender indulgence we all accord to the little woman of whom we are so fond. "I wonder if she's well enough to come to the door. It won't seem like going there if she doesn't greet us with that cooing, 'Well, look who's here!'"

But when I had stopped my car at the veranda, and Dicky had helped me out, there was no suddenly thrown-open door, no lilting call of welcome.

Oddly dispirited, we walked up the steps, and in answer to Dicky's pull of the bell, the door opened after a minute to disclose a very tall and exceedingly black woman who looked severely at us as if challenging our right to come to the front door of the house.

"Is Mrs. Durkee at home?" I stammered, so surprised at the sudden apparition that for the second I was tongue-tied. Mrs. Durkee with a maid! She, who had so often declaimed against their tyranny, and loudly asserted that she would not have one in the house!

"I will see," the woman returned in an even, colorless voice.

She extended a hand to the left of her and brought out a silver card tray which I recognized as one of Mrs. Durkee's prized possessions, but which Dicky and I, with our intimate footing in the house, never have used. Still confused, I began to open my bag in search of a card, when Dicky nudged me significantly.

"And Me! Holiness!"

I glanced up at him to see his eyes dancing with mischief, behind which there lurked the obstinacy an unwarranted assumption of dignity or authority always excites in him. That he did not object to the request of the woman for our cards, I well knew, but her stern, disapproving manner roused the little mocking devil which always lurks in his sub-consciousness.

"Do you have to pay to get in here, now?" he asked with a meek and vacant air. "Well here, put these in your bank."

He drew forth some change in his pocket, selected three pennies and a nickel and deposited them on the tray.

"I generally get my wife in for half-fare, she's so child-like." He explained gravely, while the maid stared at him as if he were an escaped lunatic, and then, with a sudden spark in her somber eyes, she declared:

"Miss Durkee, she don't see no peddlers," and I am still wondering, as is Dicky, whether she really believed her classification of us or whether she saw through his ruse, and answered him in kind, but she put her hand upon the door and swung it back toward us.

Dicky grinned broadly, even while with a deft trick worthy of the profession named by the maid, he put his foot against the door.

"But I'm her favorite bootlegger," he asserted with a serious face. "She'll see me when she knows what I have in the car for her."

From the hall behind the maid a familiar voice sounded—Katherine's.

"My word!" she exclaimed. "Madge! and Dicky! What are you standing there for? Come in."

There was a little cry of delight as genuine as that of a child from an upstairs room, and Mrs. Durkee's welcome floated down the stairway.

"Hurry up here, both of you. I've been dying to see you."

The maid stepped back, her face looking curiously suffused and swung open the door again. Then with head high she stalked back to the kitchen, and as she went she kept up a sullen mumbling.

"Trash!" we heard as the explosive end of a sentence, then in still more withering accents: "Bootlegger," and her last utterance made Dicky and me look at each other in complete bewilderment:

"And me! Holiness!"

QUEENS OF THE MAY -:- -:- By Juanita Hamel

WHAT will she say tomorrow when he pleadingly asks for answer? She might send him away and—but on May-day—the triumph of Spring—when all the flowers will don their prettiest, the birds will sing their merriest and the children of the land will send their happy laughter o'er the breeze? Yes she might say "NO," but will she—when a mere nod of assent will make her queen of the May—and queen of their own happy kingdom? Can she say anything except "yes?"

YOUR HEALTH

How to Make Every Day May-Day for the Children

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
United States Senator from New York,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

DR. COPELAND

MAY-DAY this year is to be given unusual significances. The American Child Health Association will attempt to mobilize in every American city, town and hamlet to-merrow, as many as possible of the thirty-five million children of our country.

There will be open air fetes, pageants and parades. The problems relating to health, life in the open, and all the things having to do with the welfare of the child will be discussed by the great authorities.

Where I live in New York the windows look out upon one of the entrances to Central Park. Every Saturday during the month is "May-Day." You can imagine I have seen thousands of Queens and Kings of the May.

I am glad the Child Health Association has adopted a programme intended to impress the lessons of health. It will give a more definite purpose to the beautiful exercises which have characterized past celebrations.

The other day I saw an extract from a remarkable report made by the Bureau of Education of the Federal Government. This was founded on physical examinations given 22,000,000 school children. I want you to see these figures. Consider these:

Five million have defective eyes.
A million have defective hearing.
A million have active tuberculosis.
A quarter of a million have organic heart trouble.
Three to five million are underfed.

These appalling figures indicate that there's something wrong with more than one-half of our children. They do not include the skin diseases, the bad teeth, tonsils, adenoids and many other ailments suffered by the young.

There is no one thing so productive of good health and vigor as the out-of-door life. Witness the rosy cheeks of the children when they have played for hours in the sunshine.

In one way country children have a better chance to prosper physically than city children. But the latter possess the advantage of having school doctors and nurses to find the defects and to send the children to their family physicians for proper attention.

It is vitally important that the physical defects of childhood should be recognized as early as possible. At this period are laid the foundations of the future. The welfare of a lifetime depends on the removal of the troubles which begin in the tender years.

WINIFRED BLACK WRITES ABOUT May-Day and Its Meaning

Copyright, 1924, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Winifred Black

MAY-DAY—dear me, the very name is a charm!

Shut your eyes, now, and say it over to yourself:

"May-day!"

What do you see?

A field of clover, sweet and sweet, and bees buzzing over it.

A field of wheat, green and green, and yellow butterflies aflutter. Bluebirds in an apple tree and the apple blossoms rose and white against a sky of blue.

Robins on the lawn—fat, red-vested fellows, like bossy little aldermen out attending competently to business.

Little curly lambs and children dancing in the grass—barefooted, with their hair flying in the soft wind of May.

Why Shouldn't You Be Happy?

May-day—why shouldn't we celebrate it?

Summer is knocking at the door—dear Summer, in her youth and in her May-day dress of soft green and pure white and lovely pink! Summer and the brooks running clear, Summer and the blue water rolling upon silver sands!

Outdoors, children! Shut your books, throw away your pencils, forget everything that was ever taught in any stupid schoolroom anywhere on earth—come on, let's all go out and play with May!

Let's get out into the field—well, Johnny Sullivan, who told you to take off your shoes and stockings—what?

You like to feel the spring on the ground under your feet, and isn't it nice and squshy when the grass tickles your toes? Oh, well, then, I'll hold your shoes for you or put them somewhere so you can find them when you come back—run and kick up your heels, you poor little pale fellow!

Let the sun put a bridge of yellow freckles across that little turned-up nose of yours. Get your hands sunburned and brown. Stick a dandelion in the brim of your hat—or if you don't want to wear a hat and can't bear to think of a coat, put a daisy in the buttonhole of your shirt—and throw back your head and whoop like a caliope!

We'll all know what you mean. You'd like to sing, but somehow you don't just dare. You'd like to laugh, and you'd like to put your head down somewhere and fairly bawl, as you call it, all because you're so happy.

Why shouldn't you be happy, and you young and the green grass and the Spring wind and all the little running brooks for company?

Come here, little Mistress Mary—not so very contrary—let's go looking for fairies, you and I—not the ones with gauze wings and sparkling jewels that you see sometimes in the movies. Ah, no! They do not live outdoors, those fairies—it's the little fellows not as tall as your stubby little finger that we want. Green caps and red jackets they wear; and if we could only creep up on one of them and snatch his little cap of green we'd be invisible whenever we liked, and wouldn't that be fun?—I ask you.

Who knows how long you'll live, Mary, quite contrary, and how far you'll travel, and how much sorrow you'll have, and how many cares will bow down those slim little shoulders of yours, dear You, with your clear eyes and your sensitive little mouth? We can't keep away the troubles for you; we can't give you money and friends and position—no, not even health, that greatest gift of all, can we bring to you—we who love you so dear, so very dear.

But the light heart and a ready laugh and a pair of nimble feet and the memory of the wind blowing in the grass and the smell of the fresh brown earth and the feel of the cool stem of the wild flowers—these things we can give to you. And some day, when you are tired and sick at heart, you'll shut your eyes and close out everything that's sordid and mean and cruel, and you'll think back to the time when you were little and went a-Maying, all on the first of May.

Let's Be Children Again

Come, mothers, let's pack the luncheon baskets with everything the little fellows like—sandwiches and boiled eggs and chocolate cake and white cake and apple pie and slices of cheese. Let's build a fire of twigs and make the coffee. Let's make wreaths of green leaves and put them on our heads, no matter if we do look as if we were crazy when we get them on.

There is a kind of cold sanity that isn't worth cherishing, isn't there, Freckle Face!

Whisper—where did you say the meadow-lark's nest was? Let's tiptoe to it—very carefully—you and I.

Are the pond-lilies in bloom yet, do you suppose?

Who's going to be the first to get a piece of slippery-elm bark to chew?

Hurrah!

It's May-day! Let's turn the pages in the book and be children, happy children, again.

HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

THURSDAY, MAY 1.

According to the prevailing planetary conditions, this should be a very interesting and fortunate day for business and new projects and for those in the employment of others. With the luminaries friendly and Jupiter and Neptune under trine aspect with the moon, propitious figures supported by other favorable testimonies, it is to be expected that all enterprises will flourish and bring satisfactory financial returns. There is one word of warning from the astral seers, however—beware theft and fire.

Those whose birthday it is have the assurance of a progressive and satisfactory year, but all should safeguard against loss through fire or theft. A child born on this day will be ambitious and talented and should rise in life to a prosperous position largely through its own well-directed efforts. It will be generous and kindly.

This May-time Frock of Fine Batiste Is Trimmed with Net.

THERE is nothing quite so dainty and attractive for the very small girl as a frock of all white.

Sheer batiste makes the attractive little dress shown above. Its trimming is furnished by narrow bands of fine white net, ruffled. These outline the little yoke and edge the sleeves. The same ruffling in U-shaped design is repeated at the hem of the frock.

This might also be done in cream color, with cream lace for trimming.

polite fiction that they exercise a protectorate over the Afgars, but this consists of an agreement made some forty years ago by the Amir to accept help from England in case he should be attacked by the Russians on his northern frontier.

Interference of any sort from British travelers or tourists, any inroads by the British Indian Government which would finally put it in control of the native states of India, have been prevented by the Amir so successfully that there are few Indian officials who have any idea of what goes on within the frontiers of this modern hermit kingdom.

The Amir has copied Germany, and maintains universal military training. He claims he can put half a million men under arms, and neither England nor Russia, his only neighbors, would think of challenging his claims. He is as safe among his hills in Asia as the Swiss were among their hills in Europe during the great World War.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I sometimes go to a dance. There is a young man there occasionally, but he always has the same girl with him. I have become acquainted with him. He always asks me for a dance and when I'm not dancing he tries to shake the girl he is dancing with and comes and asks me to dance. I know this is very rude. He shows me quite a lot of attention. When the dance is over he stands and talks to me instead of trying to see where his girl is.

I have just learned recently that he is engaged to this girl. What would you do if you were in my place? Would you just ignore him? The girl has been looking at me very unkindly. I would not want to be the cause of the engagement being broken.

DISCONTENTED.

DISCONTENTED: Of course you must discourage his attentions. Put yourself in the other girl's place and see how you would feel. Tell him in a tactful way that you know he is engaged, congratulate him and show that you do not desire his attentions.

Unusually Delicious Company Cheese-Dishes.

CHEESE dishes are popular with almost all grown-ups and frequently solve, in a wonderful way, the problem of an emergency dish for unexpected company. We hear on all sides of various diet systems. Many of these allow cheese where they forbid meat.

The careful choice of the right kind of cheese for the dish to be made is one of the secrets of good cheese cookery. Not all dishes can be made from one kind. For instance, for making rarebits, a soft, rich and creamy cheese is best. Taste a crumb when buying. If it melts readily on the tongue it is the right kind. For grating, a dry, sharp cheese is best. In making a fondue, a Parmesan grated cheese, or a dry American grated cheese—"store cheese" so-called—will do. The latter are also best for soup and macaroni.

Cheese Fondue.

Melt an ounce of butter in a saucepan and add to it one ounce of flour and a quarter pint of milk. Stir the mixture until all is smooth and thick, then add three ounces of Parmesan cheese and a half saltspoonful each of salt and cayenne pepper. Pour the mixture onto the stiffly-beaten whites of the eggs. Pour the fondue into a buttered souffle-pan, which should be half full, and bake it in a moderate oven for twenty minutes. Serve it at once, for if the dish stands, it loses its lightness and delicacy.

Cheese Patties.

Line buttered patty-pans with delicate crust and finish the edges with the floured tines of a fork. Melt an ounce of butter in a stew-pan, add an ounce of flour and a half pint of milk and stir the mixture until it is thick and smooth. Let it cool slightly, then stir in the yolks of four eggs. Cook gently, but do not allow the mass to boil, for three or four minutes. Add four ounces of grated cheese, pepper and salt and fold in the stiffly-beaten whites of the eggs. Fill crust-lined pans with the mixture and bake it in a quick oven. This should be sufficient for eight or nine people. The patties may be slipped out of the pans and each served in a napkin garnished with a sprig of parsley.

Tomato Rarebit.

Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter, then stir in gradually, two tablespoonfuls of flour. When it thickens add gradually, three-quarters of a cupful of light cream. Have ready three-quarters of a cupful of stewed and strained tomato juice to which a saltspoonful of bicarbonate of soda has been added. Pour this into the mixture with two cupfuls of grated cheese, two beaten eggs, a little salt and cayenne pepper and a half teaspoonful of made mustard. Stir the mixture until the cheese is melted, then turn it over toast rounds on a hot platter, or serve it on separate dishes.

Beauty Aids to Dry and Oily Skins

By LUCREZIA BORI

The Famous Spanish Prima Donna

"IF only I knew what to do for my complexion!"

So many women say this with an inflection of despair. They realize that their skins do not yield the proper amount of loveliness, yet do not know what to do to enhance the charm of their complexions.

Now, my dears, just a few words of wisdom on the subject. In the first place, you can't know what the proper treatment is until you decide just what type of skin you have.

Is it dry or is it oily?

If it is abnormally dry you must have noticed the tendency it has to show fine lines when the weather is particularly windy or dry. Your lips probably chap easily and your skin shows a tendency to appear almost flaky with excessive dryness, at times.

If it is too oily you may have difficulty avoiding the greasy appearance that all women dread. But let me assure you now that the way around this is not in coating your face with powder. You must get closer to the root of the trouble than this.

If your skin is very dry I am going to advise using water on it only once a day—and this a dash of cold water in the morning. For the rest, procure:

A good cleansing cream
A good cold cream
Some bits of soft old linen

Now, at night, cleanse your skin thoroughly with the cleansing cream. Rub it in, leave it in a few minutes, and wipe your face off with the old linen. When this is done, take a small bit of the skin food on the very tips of your fingers and rub it lightly into your face, applying it carefully at the corners of your eyes where fine wrinkles like to come. Apply this skin food ever so lightly, as you do not want to stop up your pores entirely.

For the oily skin the beauty implements you will need are:

A fine camel's hair brush for the face
A cake of pure castile soap

I should advise using these at night before you go to bed. Make a lather of warm water and castile soap. Dampen your face first with the warm water, then lather your brush with pure soapsuds and brush your face thoroughly and gently. Remember always to brush up and out, for you do not want to damage the muscles of your face by pulling them down.

When this is over, rinse your face very thoroughly with clear water that is warm, but never hot. Follow with a dash of cold water.

In the morning wash your face again in warm water, then cold, but omit the use of soap at this washing.

Whichever condition applies to your skin, you should find that the treatment for its particular need will work wonders in restoring the flawless loveliness that is a rightful asset of every woman's complexion.

If Advertising Stopped

"WHAT would be the reaction upon the cost of living if advertising ceased and its beneficent force were stopped?" This question, asked by the Fourth Estate, provides much food for rumination.

It is an interesting conjecture. Advertising largely takes the place of personal selling effort, which is much more expensive. A California editor cogitating on the possibility of a cessation of advertising says:

"It would mean that our railroad trains would be thronged with salesmen whose homeward bound mail would carry fewer orders, all of smaller volume than now.

"Distribution upon the present scale would be impossible. Manufacturing would fall off, with a consequent decrease in labor demand. Jobbers would find their business proportionally limited. Retailers would make fewer and slower turnovers. Prices of all commodities would take a rise that would make war prices and ante-war prices seem low by comparison."

The Duelling Nuisance

VINCENZO NITTI, of Naples, son of former Premier Nitti has again been wounded in a duel, as he attempted to avenge an attack made on his father in an article written by Armando Ordenigo. While condemning these bloody encounters, one cannot but admire the young hot-head who instigated them.

In the most approved D'Artagnan style he comes to the defense of his father's honor. A week ago he fought Giulio Francesconi, editor of the Mezzo Gornou the periodical in which the article was printed. After a few minutes of sword play, young Nitti's physician made him stop, as a result of a wound in the arm. Nothing daunted, he gallantly issued a challenge to the author of the article, presumably waiting until his fencing improved before again taking on the editor. In the encounter with the author, Sunday, Nitti was again wounded in the right arm. Apparently, all living scribes in Italy are good swordsmen.

Quite naturally and properly, young Nitti resents the attack on his father. But his method of showing his resentment is, to say the least, a trifle medieval. Perhaps, Italian custom demanded that he resort to violence. If so, the custom is wrong. There should be laws against extreme personal or libelous statements. If the attack was of a purely political character, such as are directed against any man in public office, it would have been far better for the son to make a public reply and denial of the charges.

It would in no way have helped his father in public opinion if he had killed both the editor and the author. At all events, we maintain that there should be ample legal protection for writers, particularly editorial writers, against any assault, whether it be a thrust in the heart or a punch on the jaw.

Getting Down To Brass Tacks

MEMBERS of council are showing commendable enterprise in their efforts to devise ways and means to put the city on its feet financially. It is the earnest hope of this paper that these efforts will not stop with temporary devices to tide over present difficulties. Whatever program is adopted should embody the principles of permanency.

Members of the present council may rest assured that the work upon which they have entered will not be conducive to personal popularity. They may rest assured that whatever plans they may finally adopt will be roundly denounced in many quarters and that the enforcement of the measures they decide upon will be the signal for vigorous protests and deep-throated growling. They will be dubbed "one-termers" and "Shylocks," but if they are possessed of real moral courage they will not be deterred by criticism.

They may as well admit at the outset that the new municipal tax measures they enact are unjust and unscientific. The truth might as well be faced. But councilmen may comfort themselves in the thot that the tangled web of finance that they are trying to unravel is not of their own making and that they are working for the future welfare of the city rather than for temporary political popularity. The time to stop passing the buck had to come and it is to the credit of the present council and city administration that they possess sufficient courage and foresight to make the year 1924 the turning point.

So, it is the sincere hope of this paper that when council finally launches its emergency tax program, the people of Coshocton will look at the matter fairly and prepare for a period of several years of what admittedly will be a time of excessive taxation. It is not enough to raise money sufficient to pay outstanding light bills, back salaries of city employes and to provide for clean streets for the current fiscal year. The city should be in such shape financially that the sinking fund trustees in the future will be prepared to absorb all local bond issues and out of each year's proceeds from taxation not only should the city's current expenses be met, but a profit be realized as in the case of every successfully managed private enterprise.

This margin of profit need not be large, but it should be the fixed policy of all succeeding municipal administrations in Coshocton, regardless of party, that the balance at the end of the year should be on the right side of the ledger. This can be done. It must be done. There is no more necessity for Coshocton to run forever behind financially than there is for one of our successfully managed stores or factories.

To do this, however, means a financial hardship for the next three or four years. A city must pay for its profligacy the same as an individual. But if our people will only meet council half way, honestly and in the open, admit the faults of the past, levy an excessviely heavy tax for say, four years, pay it without grumbling and accumulate a surplus, demand an honest revaluation of every piece of real property in the county next year and then refuse stubbornly to spend money not in sight, Coshocton may enjoy the enviable reputation the country over of having a normal rate of taxation once more and, better still, of paying as it goes. Let's all resolve to back council in its effort to make ours a solvent city.

New York Day-by-Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, May 1. — The kindliest people to be found anywhere are among those who essay small character parts on the stage. They are mostly old and gentle souls whose illusions have gone with the years, but they have not allowed life to embitter them.

The old character actor or actress is not most always one who has hugged the big dream. When the Magnificent Opus burst with a bang they carried on. Their existence is a constant trimming of sails for bad weather. Engagements are few and far between.

They live in dreary rooms on shabby streets fringing the Rialto. The agency ante-rooms fill with them where they sit about curled up like frozen leaves—hoping and hoping for the magic change that rarely ever comes.

The women are silver haired and wear dowdy bonnets and trailing black skirts. They are drab figures on the White Way backdrop—giving no impress of personality yet presenting some intangible expression of pathetic resignation.

The men are stooped and wear clothes a little too giddy for mature years. They smoke pipes and talk of their younger brothers who are successful. Character folk have entirely outgrown the petty jealousies that afflict those of their world who have achieved.

The character folk represent the grey mist that the spotlight can never banish in the stage world. Wherever you find a successful actor or actress ill you will always find the character people bring little bouquets of faded flowers or offering words of cheer.

A part with a line or two is all they ask. Top salary for them is $75 a week, but the majority receive $50 and this must be buttered over the many thin weeks "at liberty."

An East Side pants maker who has become quite a figure in the movie producing world was recently selecting a chief for his scenario staff. The producer insisted that the successful applicant must be a college graduate. He looked with favor upon one applicant and asked if he had had a college education. He received an affirmative reply.

"Show your diploma," demanded the producer. The applicant tried to explain it was not customary for college graduates to carry diplomas around with them.

"Well then," demanded the producer with just a slight sneer, "say me a big word."

Greenwich Village is the only place in New York where one may get a Sunday afternoon hair cut. After prowling about the village one wonder why there is any need of barbers at all. The explanation of the afternoon hair cut on Sunday is that no one in the village arises until noon at the earliest and so the barber do not open their shops until that time.

Canes for women suddenly became passe. Six months ago Fifth Avenue was filled with ladies who carried canes and a few who carried swagger sticks. A lady's cane shop opened as a tribute to the new fashion. It was not the fad of the flapper who flits lightly from one fashion foible to another but of the stylish debutant and even the middle aged. No one seems to know why the craze was so short lived.

I hope in the same manner the bell shaped trousers for men will die at a gasp. They are ballooning more each week and the young gobs from the navy with their wide ones are really amateurish.

Dishes can be washed and bottles cleansed with a new attachment for kitchen sink faucets.

DOING THINGS RIGHT

I care not what my neighbors say, nor heed the stories they may tell; serene, unmoved, I go my way, intent on doing all things well; I saw my wood and bale my hay, and paint the shack wherein I dwell. No doubt the neighbors criticize my daily deeds in bitter terms, no doubt they say I'm far from wise to fish for trout with angleworms, dislike the way I swat the flies, and chloroform the deadly germs. Time was when I was much distraught by what the villagers might think; I feared to labor lest they thot my works were badly on the blink, and every day some gossip brot a tale that made my spirit shrink. But years bring wisdom as they scoot, they brot a little slice to me; I do my chores and care no hoot how many critics there may be; a man is but a cheap galoot who fears what neighbors may decree. So that he does the best he can, and keeps his fence in proper trim, and is as fair to every man as he would have men be to him, it boots not if the neighbors plan to yap at him with bow-wow vim. However well a man may steer his bateau down the stream of time, there always are some alecks near to say his steering is a crime; and he is wise to give no ear, to fix his eyes on stars sublime.

Personal Finances of the Presidents

JOHN QUINCY ADAMS
1767—1849

The Statesman Who Saved Money in Late Years.

John Quincy Adams was born ten miles south of Boston in a little farmhouse, on July 11, 1767. His father was still only a young lawyer who had recently quit school teaching. Soon John Hancock, merchant, cousin of his brilliant mother, Abigail Smith Adams paid to his father the great law fee of $50.00 equal to $300.000 now, and John Adams was able to begin that skyrocket career which lifted him from poverty to the Presidency and then dropped him back into a poverty-stricken long old age.

The boy went to Europe with his father, and the only school that he ever attended was Harvard College, where he did the four years' course in two years and then studied law in a famous lawyer's office for three years more. Twice for a few years each, he practised law, and made and saved some money, but most of the time he held public office at home or in foreign service.

In 1797, J. Q. Adams married Louise Catherine Johnson, a Maryland lady, then living in London, with her uncle who was in our diplomatic service. She had but little property, and her husband likewise. But father John Quincy Adams, being President, gave to John Quincy Adams the work of negotiating a treaty with Prussia, where he remained until 1801.

In 1825, while John Adams was still living, "J. Q." or "Quincy" after being Secretary of State under Monroe at $3,500 a year became President. The finances of father and son were inseparable. Much of the money that the son spent the father had earned. On becoming President, Quincy had almost nothing. Also, he saved nothing, for like his father before him, he felt certain of a second term.

But the Quincy district stood by the Quincy blood, thru Abigail Adams, and for nine successive terms sent Quincy Adams to Congress on $1500 a year. He died in the Capitol Building February 23, 1848, of paralysis.

In these last years, he had earned also considerable sums as a lawyer. His estate was $25,000 equal then to $75,000 now. The heirs were the widow and four children, of whom some became both rich and famous.

Mrs. J. Q. Adams lived until 1852 in the little frame house at Quincy.

S.S.S. keeps away Pimples

You will be compelled to admit that the results of S.S.S. are really amazing!

Did you ever know how big cities make the hydrant water fit for you to drink? That's what S. S. S. does to the blood in your own blood-pipes. It makes it fit to circulate. S. S. S. is acknowledged to be one of the most powerful, rapid and effective blood-cleansers known. You don't have to use some new fad treatment that is mere guesswork, you don't have to smear things on your face in a vain effort to get rid of eruptions. Eruptions come from blood impurities and a lack of rich blood-cells. S. S. S. builds new blood-cells. This is why S. S. S. routs out of your system the impurities which cause boils, pimples, blackheads, acne, blotches, eczema, tetter, rash. That's why S. S. S. has done such wonderful work in freeing thousands from the scourge of rheumatism. S. S. S. is also a remarkable flesh-builder. That's why underweight people can quickly build up their lost flesh, get back their normal weight, pink, plump cheeks, bright eyes, and "pep." S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores. The large size is more economical.

Increase your Red-Blood-Cells. That's the sure way! S. S. S. builds Blood-Cells; this means strength!

S.S.S. makes you feel like yourself again

ANNUAL INTERSCHOLASTIC MEET AT CHICAGO SHORTLY

CHICAGO, May 1.—The University of Chicago will hold its twentieth annual interscholastic track and field meet for the championship of America, May 30 and 31. For twenty years this has been the outstanding event in high school track competitions, and during this time teams from virtually every State in the Union have competed.

Plans for the 1924 national interscholastic have been made with expectations that teams from high schools throughout the nation will journey to compete.

There will really be two great meets in one, a meet for high schools and a meet for academies, with separate events and separate prizes for each. The events for the high schools include the 100-yard dash, 220, 440, 880 yards, mile, two mile, the high jump, pole vault, shot, discus, hammer, javelin and three-quarter mile relay.

The academy events include the 100-yard dash, 220, 440, 880, mile, two mile, high jump, pole vault, shot, discus and javelin.

Teams will be the guests of fraternities during their stay in Chicago, and suitable entertainment will be arranged for the boys, including a trip through the city, banquets and entertainment.

SIMPLE HOME TREATMENT FOR SWOLLEN VEINS

If you or any relative or friend is worried because of varicose veins, or bunches, the best advice that anyone in this world can give is to get a prescription that many physicians are now prescribing.

Ask Wimmer-Arnold Co., 2 Tomlin Bldg., for an original two-ounce bottle of Emerald Oil (full strength) and apply night and morning to the swollen, enlarged veins. Soon you will notice that they are growing smaller and the treatment should be continued until the veins are of normal size. Emerald Oil is a powerful, yet harmless germicide and results are guaranteed.

Gibson to Fight in Courts for Carpentier Go

NEW YORK, May 1.—Billy Gibson, local boxing manager, asserted today that his plans were in readiness to bring injunction proceedings in the courts of two states, calculated to restrain Floyd Fitzsimmons from conducting the Carpentier-Gibbons bout at Michigan City, Ind., on May 31.

Gibson claims to have a prior right to Carpentier's service in signing him to meet Gene Tunney in Jersey City, June 16.

Tagging The Bases

After socking a triple, Rabbit Maranville engaged in a steal of home with the run that gave the Pirates a 2-to-1 decision over the Cubs in the fourteenth.

Stack made his debut with the Dodgers by driving in the winning runs with a single in the eleventh, the Braves going down by a score of 6 to 4.

Every game in the American League was washed overboard by rain as were those scheduled between the Phils and Giants and Cardinals and Reds in the National League.

DARK TEETH BLEACHED IN THREE MINUTES

You have always longed for flashing teeth. And now at last you can have them easily, quickly and safely. Two scientists have discovered a remarkable new treatment which often in only three minutes bleaches dull dingy discolorations from the teeth, leaving them clear, sparkling white and lustrous. This new treatment, called Bleachodent Combination, consists of a mild safe liquid and a new kind of paste. The liquid curdles and softens the stains, while the paste removes them, and if used daily prevents the formation of future stains. You simply brush teeth with a few drops of the liquid—then use the paste. Almost before you realize it, unsightly surface stains disappear and the teeth take on a dazzling new whiteness and lustre. First application usually leaves teeth whiter than with ten times the scouring by old-fashioned methods. Bleachodent Combination is harmless—does not affect enamel as its mild ingredients are intended to act only on surface stains—not on enamel itself. Especially beneficial for children's teeth which stain easily. Get Bleachodent Combination today for a few cents. Be sure you ask for Bleachodent Combination. At all good dealers.

Storm Sweeps

lives and several others were expected to die.

Georgia and Alabama suffered most next to South Carolina, 13 being killed in Georgia, while twelve Alabamans lost their lives. One person was killed in Arkansas, one in Louisiana and still another in Oklahoma.

As demoralized telegraphic communications were restored today additional accounts of the storm's ravages were received. It was believed at southern headquarters of the Red Cross corps at Atlanta that a complete casualty list and a corrected estimate of the storm damage will not be available for several days.

Red Cross emergency workers have been rushed to those points where suffering was said to be the worst.

Several little towns in Georgia, Alabama and South Carolina were virtually in ruins today while many rural sections were completely annihilated. Most of the victims were residents of small communities.

Altho an edge of the cyclone swept through Atlanta, causing heavy property loss, compartively small damage was reported from large Southern cities. A small community near Macon was destroyed at the cost of four lives and many injured but the city proper was not struck, as was the case of Spartanburg, S. C., and Durham, N. C.

The largest number of killed at one place was Sumter, S. C. The storm struck a farming settlement there, instantly killing 12 persons and left a path of wreckage for miles. Bodies of the 12 men, along with more than a dozen injured, were removed from a huge pile of debris after hours of work by rescuers. Another section near Anderson, S. C., suffered the loss of nine lives. Forty homes in Anderson are complete wrecks today, while heavy property damage was felt over the entire city.

The storm swooped down in many unsettled sections. It is learned, leaving wide and long strips of waste as it tore its way thru large tracts of valuable timber.

The list of injured has conservatively been set at 500, as in almost every instance twenty injured were reported to every death. It was generally believed the dozen missing persons lost their lives and their bodies were blown some distance from their homes or that they were buried under piles of untouched debris.

The body of Gus Patrick, postmaster at Washington, Ga., was found more than a quarter of a mile from where he was picked up by the wind. Many miraculous escapes are reported while freak stories of the storm came in from all quarters.

At one point near Opelika, Ala., the tornado swept down into a field of cattle, strewing their bodies for a mile. Today books and other small household articles were picked up at some places and identified as belonging to families living miles away.

Mississippi was the only state in the storm's path that did not suffer heavy damage.

The first damage after leaving Arkansas was near Montgomery, Ala., and from then on to Durham, S. C., the high winds dropped down intermittently spelling ruin and death in almost every section.

YEARS before Yankee ingenuity outdid the birds, hardy American pioneers with white-hooded "Prairie Schooners" toiled across the plains between the Mississippi River and the Rockies and down the Western slopes of the Great Divide into the golden land of California and the fertile valleys of Oregon. The wheels of their wagons transmuted the desert sands into gold. The pebbles kicked up by their horses and oxen crystalized into the diamonds of our queenliest social leaders. Their outriders broke the ground from which springs the grain to feed the world. Their thrilling story is told in

Administration Loses Amendment; Simmons Offers Bill Aimed at Big Incomes

IS LIKELY TO PASS

Differences Expected to Be Ironed Out in Conference; Schedules Are Revised

(By WM. K. HUTCHINSON)

WASHINGTON, May 2—The administration lost another round today in the tax reduction battle in the senate.

Democratis and insurgent forces rejected by a vote of 37 to 36 an amendment recommended by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon limiting deductions from net income derived from tax exempt securities.

Democratic opposition to the Mellon plan for reducing federal taxes swung into action when Senator Simmons of North Carolina, minority finance leader, formally offered a substitute schedule for the tax rates proposed by the administration.

The Simmons plan, based upon a minimum normal tax of two per cent and a maximum surtax of 40 per cent, would offer larger reductions to the small tax payers and impose heavier rates upon large incomes than those proposed by the Mellon schedule.

A canvas indicated the Simmons plan would be adopted by the senate with ultimately a compromise between the Democratic substitute and the Longworth bill, passed by the house. These two measures very slightly in rates, the house bill stopping with a maximum surtax of 37½ per cent. The differences, however, can easily be ironed out in conference..

The Mellon plan was doomed to defeat—even by the administration leaders who sponsored it. Both Senator Smoot, Republican, of Utah, chairman of the senate finance committee and Senator

Apple Trees Are Last to Bloom

Coshocton's first 1924 apple blossom opened, Thursday, May 1.

Practically all other kinds of fruit have been in bloom for several days Moreover, it is an odd turn of nature that varieties of apples, as well as of other kinds of fruit, that ripen latest ordinarily blossom first The Keiffer pear, for instance, which is the latest pear to ripen, ordinarily blossoms first, according to fruit specialists.

C. C. Graham, of this city, said that James R. Johnson, former Coshocton nurseryman, had observed that peaches in this section blossomed as early as April 13, and no later than April 27 This year the first peach blossom was reported April 15.

Each Vote Cast Tuesday Cost County Over $3.50

Only 1,499 Votes Cast—Election Cost Taxpayers Total of $5,300 in This County

From figures obtained at the office of the board of elections today it was learned that the total expense connected with carrying on the primary election Tuesday in this county alone was approximately $5,300

A total of 1,499 votes was cast. Each vote cost the county an average of slightly more than $3.50.

There were 28 voting places in the city and 54 outside the city, a total of 82 in the county.

Six clerks are required for each voting place, five of whom get paid $5 per day, and the presiding judge receives $4 extra. Thus, it can be seen that in the city alone the employment of clerks cost $952.

In the county the clerks are paid the same, but a mileage of 20 cents is allowed. In some of the voting places outside the city the total expense incurred amounting to as high as $39.

Besides the employment of necessary clerks, there is the expense of printing the ballots, renting the voting places, etc.

Compromise is Expected Before Actors Strike

NEW YORK, May 2.—There will be no general strike of actors June 1, with its consequent disastrous effect upon the theatrical business of the country, it was predicted in authoritatively informed quarters today as the producing managers association met to discuss the crisis.

What probably will happen, it was said, is this:

1—The managers will decide, first of all that a strike must be averted.

2—The issue with the Actors' Equity Association will be compromised and a ten year agreement signed.

3—The compromise will mean, it was said, that theatrical companies for the next ten years will be composed of 80 per cent equity members and 20 per cent fidelity or non-equity members

The fidelity members are mostly comprised of stars who resent the idea of working under a union contract, preferring the old method of dealing personally with the management.

While officials of the equity announced they are still demanding a complete equity shop it is regarded as a certainty they will agree to a compromise on the 80-20 basis.

The unsettled conditions as a result of the present crisis is beginning to show its effect along the Rialto. Florenz Ziegfeld, who is opposed to the equity shop, announced today that the "Follies" will close May 17 because of existing conditions. The road tour of the "Follies of 1923" will terminate at Newark, May 10, and he said, the company's Pacific coast tour was cancelled because of the probability of a strike.

Treat Potatoes for Scab, County Agent Advises

County Agent G C. Musgrove recommends that all seed potatoes be treated for scab.

"Even the certified seed that has been received by Coshocton-co farmers thru the county farm bureau," he says, "should be treated for scab. It is entirely free from scab now, but it may have been infected by handling or by placing in barns where slight infestation might occur.

"One pint of 40 per cent formaldehyde to 30 gallons of water should be used Soak the seed before cutting, from one to one and one half hours, then spread out to dry.

"Corrosive sublimate treatment will also control scab Use four ounces of corrosive sublimate to 30 gallons of water Seed should be soaked from one half hour to one hour, depending upon the intensity of the black scurf Tubers should be treated before cutting."

Wreck Train is Called from Dennison When Weak Rail Turns Under Weight

A weak rail which turned over under the weight of a locomotive caused a wreck of an engine and its tender on the sidetrack just south of the Pennsylvania freight station this morning at 7 o'clock.

The engine and tender were derailed. The rail turned over while the engine and tender had backed away from the freight station after uncoupling some cars.

A wreck train from Dennison was summoned and at 9 o'clock the workmen were busy placing the heavy engine and tender on the track. It took about an hour and a half to place the trucks back on the track.

New ties and rails were laid so that the engine could reach the main track again.

East and west bound trains were detoured over the west bound track No trains were delayed.

Columbus Youth Runs Away with Wire Performer

NEW YORK, May 2.—Police today are seeking 11 year-old Paul Pennell, of Columbus, Ohio and Alton Carl, 38, a slack wire performer in circuses, accused by the boy's father of enticing the boy from him

Clark Pennell, the father, told the police that on April 21 the boy suddenly disappeared and he found the circus performer had also vanished.

The Pennells met Carl in Columbus several years ago and about three weeks ago Carl induced Pennell to come to New York in quest of employment and bring his sons.

Paul and Carl were great friends, according to Pennell and the performer often discussed training the boy to be a wire walker.

After the boys disappearance Pennell returned to Columbus and discovered his wife had received a letter from Paul mailed in a town in Duchess-co. N. Y

PATHETIC SCENES AT BENWOOD WIDOW TRIES TO DROWN SELF

WHEELING, W. Va., May 2—The number of bodies taken from the Benwood mine of the Wheeling Steel Corporation, this morning still stands at 49 with 61 more bodies listed as missing. Gas, water and falls of roof stone handicap work and this morning an official announcement was made that efforts to get thru entry No. 1 had for the time being been abandoned, and efforts were being concentrated to reach the section of the mine thru entry No. 12. Exhausted rescuers were working doggedly but it would be night before they hoped to accomplish their goal.

Today a dozen funerals are to be held, following the 14 held yesterday included three triple funerals, and two double ones.

A relief fund today was swelled by a $10,000 contribution from the Red Cross, who with the Salvation Army workers have been unceasingly working to alleviate suffering among the rescuers and the families of victims.

One of the pathetic features of the tragedy was the preparation for the funeral of a body identified as Nick Podola, which came to an abrupt halt when the widow declared the corpse was not that of her husband Of the 49 bodies removed from the morgue only one is unidentified. Mrs John Koplha of Moundsville, widow of one of the mine victims was yesterday dragged from the Ohio river where she had waded waist deep in an effort to end her life, thru despair over her husband's death and the fact that one child is near death from scarlet fever She kept calling for "John" and shouted "Let me die"

France Slow to Relinquish Its Grip on Germany

By DAVID M. CHURCH

LONDON, May 2.—Premier Theunis, of Belgium, and Foreign Minister Hymans conferred at exchequers court today with Premier Ramsay MacDonald, outlining Franco-Belgian plans for giving up economic control of Germany gradually as Germany enacts the provisions of the Dawes reparations plan.

The two Belgian statesmen had arrived from Paris last night after a series of conferences with Premier Poincare, Marshal Foch and French reparation experts

It is understood they communicated to Premier MacDonald some of the fears of Premier Poincare regarding lack of guarantees. It is reported they indicated that Premier Poincare is willing to accept the Dawes plan in its original form if assurances are forthcoming that the British will support France in renewing economic control of Germany if the Germans default

There is a growing feeling in England that the inter-allied reparations commission should not be allowed to interfere with the working of the Dawes plan.

Coolidge in Absolute Control of His Party

President Accepts Resignation Today of Adams, Chairman, Names His Successor

By GEORGE R HOLMES
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, May 2 — President Coolidge has laid a firm and heavy hand on the Republican party organization

Now that his nomination at Cleveland six weeks hence has been placed in category of certainties he has taken over absolute control of the G. O. P machine and henceforth his will be the guiding hand on the steering wheel and his will he the foot on the accelerator

The president's assumption of control has been so gradual and easy that the Republican senatorial clique that "ran" the Chicago convention four years ago have had but little voice in shaping the plans for the Cleveland conclave.

Starting inauspiciously by taking the convention away from Chicago where it was destined to go, Mr Coolidge sent it to Cleveland. He followed this up by naming representative Theodore Burton, of Ohio, as temporary chairman and keynoter, and he topped it off today by accepting the resignation of John T. Adams, as chairman of the national committee and designating William M. Butler, of Massachusetts as Adams' successor.

Butler announced himself some

They maintain that their demands are reasonable, and declare that they intend to continue their strike until relief is offered.

Argue Motion to Quash Sinclair Indictment Charging Contempt of Court; Start Today

CHARGE MUCKRAKING

Government Counsel Maintains Senate Had Power to Demand that Sinclair Testify

WASHINGTON, May 2.—Arguments on the motion of Harry F. Sinclair, multi-millionaire lessee of Teapot Dome, to quash the contempt indictment against him for refusal to answer questions propounded by the senate public lands committee investigating leases on naval oil reserves, opened before associate Justice Adolph A. Hoehling in district supreme court today.

Attorneys for Sinclair, in a brief of 10 pages, challenged the authority of congressional committees to compel witnesses to divulge private information and documents, and charged questions asked by the committee were "obviously purely attempts at political muckraking."

Government counsel, opposing the motion, declared congressional committees had full power to demand attendance of witnesses and require them to produce all documents and records and information pertinent in prosecuting the inquiry. The questions which Sinclair refused to answer were proper and highly pertinent to the oil investigation, they held.

It was apparent from the questions asked by Senator Walsh, Democrat, of Montana, the com-

A packed house witnessed the annual high school commencement exercises at New Castle, Thursday evening

All of the graduates performed their parts in a creditable manner. Orpha Garrison gave the valedictory, Lutha Heffelfinger the salutatory, and Everett Pigman the class history. Evelyn Beatty was the class poet and Manning Hunter the prophet.

Mae Fisher was well received in a piano solo, as were Phyllis Hayes and Lena Veatch in a vocal duet.

A W Elliott, superintendent of the Mt Vernon schools in the class address, delivered a forceful and well-taken message. His talk dealt largely with character building, thru education in the home, the church and the school—which three he termed the "tripod of the nation."

County Superintendent H. B. Pigman, with brief, appropriate remarks presented the diplomas to the graduates

The Coshocton K of P orchestra under the direction of Ortello Fredrick was especially pleasing in a well balanced program of high class music

M'Cray Behind Prison Bars in Atlanta Today

ATLANTA, Ga., May 1.—Warren T. McCray, yesterday governor of Indiana, arrived here at noon today and immediately was taken to the federal penitentiary where he will begin serving his ten year sentence for using the mails to defraud.

A handful of newspapermen were at the station but otherwise he was accorded the reception of a common prisoner. No unusual consideration whatever was shown the man who only 24 hours before had resigned as Indiana's chief executive.

Widely Known Stockman Pays Visit to County

Will Johnson, of Chicago, vice president of "The Shorthorn World," the official publication of the Shorthorn cattle breed, was in Coshocton-co, Thursday, calling upon local Shorthorn breeders.

Mr. Johnson visited Evergreen Farm, of Darling Brothers, Nellie, and discussed with Miss Kate Darling, secretary of the Coshocton-co Shorthorn breeders' association, details of the annual Coshocton-co Shorthorn breeder's sale, to be held at the local county fair grounds, Thursday afternoon, June 5.

While here Mr. Johnson called attention of a member of the Tribune staff to the fact that a Shorthorn cow has recently broken the world's milk production record.

Melba 15th of Darbalara, a Milking Shorthorn cow owned in New South Wales, had, a few days ago, made a record, for 300 days, of 29,755 pounds of milg and 1395 pounds of butterfat. This record was made on three milkings a day. With 65 days yet to go on her year's production this Shorthorn cow will, in the opinion of Mr. Johnson, make a record that will not be equalled by any dairy breed in a long time. This cow, moreover, during a three-month dry period in 1923, increased her weight from 1680 pounds to 2128 pounds.

The world's butterfat production record was formerly held by a Canadian Holstein cow, Dekol Plus Segis, which in a full year of 365 days, on four milkings a day, produced 1248 pounds of butterfat.

Governor Favors Many Changes in Government Mode

COLUMBUS, May 1.—Governor Donahey was on record today as opposing further indirect taxation, gambling in the necessities of life, and with being in favor of aiding prisoners who accept their incarceration in the "proper mental attitude."

In a speech last night at the First English Lutheran church here, the governor, also, recommended abolishment of conflicting systems of government and a "return to old-fashioned discipline in the home."

"Ohio now is in the grip of the brick and cement corporation," the governor said. "This state could easily build $5,000 additional miles of paved highway with a state appropriation thru the employment of convict labor and the establishment of state-owned brick and cement plants, but this can never come to pass until Ohio is freed from the domination of the big corporations affected."

Governor Donahey also decried "blocs." He said there was a greater need for "organizations with the interests of the people at heart."

Girl Stabs Man to Death, Akron

AKRON, May 1.—May Day for Lucille Johnson, 21, means her probable start on the road to a life term in the penitentiary. This morning she confessed to having stabbed James Sheppard to death on the street last night.

The killing took place on the sidewalk. The woman claims the man with whom she had formerly kept company, threatened her, whereupon she drew a dagger from some hiding place in her clothing and plunged it into his heart. He died instantly. She was arrested an hour later and preserved silence till this morning. The man was 35 years old.

MAN IS ROBBED IN WOMAN'S APARTMENT

DAYTON, O., May 1.—Dayton police started badger hunting today, following the complaints of a man giving the name of William Zimmerman, 32, and described as a manufacturer.

He said he was spending the evening with a woman at her apartment. A man entered wearing a mask and carrying a revolver. When the man left he carried with him Zimmerman's $1,100 diamond ring and $30 in cash.

DAYTON, O., May 1.—John Leroy, employed in the research laboratories of the General Motors Corporation, died today in a hospital, a martyre to science.

Two weeks ago he, with three other men, were overcome by the fumes of ethyl gas with which they were experimenting. The other three are on the road to recovery. Leroy was 35 years of age.

Prisoner Gets Away But None Know Just How

DAYTON, May 1.—Missing—one badly wanted man. He disappeared from the county jail day before yesterday but the discovery was not made until yesterday and police in many cities are looking for him.

Merele Cleveland, late of Jackson, Mich., is the missing man. He is wanted here for the alleged theft of a purse containing $50. Merele is said to have posed as a magazine solicitor. He is also wanted in Michigan for jumping a parole, police say. So far as the public knows the manner and time of his going are not known. When his case was called in court there was a prolonged silence. The investigation followed. Nothing doing—Merele had merely disappeared.

Raise Fund to Use in Region of Mine Blast

WHEELING, W. Va., May 1.—Directors of the Wheeling Steel Corporation at noon today contributed $5,000 to the fund for the relief of the families of the victims of the Benwood mine blast. At the same time President I. M. Scott of the company announced a donation of $1,000, chairman of the board of directors Alex Glass $1,000 and vice president W. H. Abbott, $500. Contributions are coming in from all over the country and workers declare there is great need. Women, almost crazed with grief and uncertainty forget the needs of their children in the black hour, and rescue workers are finding a big field. In one home where three miners were claimed by death there were 10 children, eight belonging to one miner.

At noon today the identified list stood at 42, with other bodies in the morgue unidentified, and more to come down to the mine this afternoon. Rescue of the dead will hardly be completed the present week.

WHEELING, W. Va., May 1.—Difficulties encountered again yesterday with gas in the ill fated mine of the Wheeling Steel Corporation at Benwood that delayed rescue of bodies, was declared this morning to have been successfully combatted. At almost any moment it was stated rescuers were expected to enter the number eight entry, where 55 men had been assigned to work the morning of the blast, and begin the work of bringing to the surface the dead from that part of the workings.

This morning 47 bodies had been brought to the surface, two more were ready to be hoisted, many more were at foot of the shaft, and after the number eight entry was reached by rescuers expectations were for a steady stream of corpses to the morgue opened yesterday evening in Benwood.

The bodies of 36 dead had been removed from the morgue and today funeral services are being conducted for them. In the number of dead are two sets of brothers and double graves will receive them in Mount Calvary cemetery. The body of fire boss M. V. Herron is to be sent to Monogahela City, Pa., for interment. Among the bodies taken out last night was that of Russell Williams, of St. Louis, until a few months ago a member of the U. S. mine car rescue service with a fifteen year record.

State Mine Chief R. M. Lambie has ordered three more mine rescue trains here from southern West Virginia to aid the rescuers and in contrast with announcement yesterday that all bodies were expected to be found during the day, it is now stated that it will be next week before rescue work is completed.

ATLANTA, Ga., May 1.—The death toll of the cyclone which swept across the south is as follows:

South Carolina 69; Georgia 13; Alabama 12; South Carolina 3.

Arkansas, Oklahoma and Louisiana, one each. This does not take into account more than a dozen persons who have been reported as missing.

LAWRENCE'S LETTER

COPYRIGHT, 1924, BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Big Business Wants Tax Question Settled—Senate Needs 30 Days to Finish Work—House Has Completed Its Program

WASHINGTON May 2— The white house expects an early adjournment of congress

The legislative program in the house of representatives has been virtually completed and were it not for the unfinished business in the senate congress could adjourn in a week But the delay in the senate will mean at least 30 days more work Assuming that no filibusters are attempted congress may be able to adjourn in time for the national conventions so that the members may devote their whole time and attention to the presidential campaign and the congressional contests

The Democrats will not block the Republican plan for an early adjournment They are in no mood to stimulate the Republicans to work any harder than they care to work They are getting ready to characterize the Republican record as a 'do nothing' session anyhow

There are signs that the big business interests of the country want congress to finish its work and go home The long delay in handling the tax revision bill has not helped business. The thot is advanced that when congress once acts on the tax program and business knows exactly what taxes it must pay out of the incomes being earned during 1924 much of the uncertainty which has begun to envelop industry here and there will disappear Also the present bill carries in it a flat reduction of 25 per cent on 1923 incomes on which the quarterly installment already has been made When the public knows definitely that sums already saved a perceptible increase in the laid aside for tax payments will be buying power of the nation is expected to be noted

Few differences between the house and senate on the question of tax revision have arisen and none that cannot be ironed out quickly in conference

Congress has not adopted an agricultural bill and there are indications that labor will press for passage of the Howell bill which eliminates the public from the railroad labor board and substitutes representatives of capital and labor alone The late president Harding thot the trouble with the railroad labor board was exactly the opposite that the interested parties ought to be eliminated and the board made up of disinterested representatives of the public Coolidge will probably share that view thru the chief basis for a vote if the bill comes to him for action will be his objection to the expenditure of $500,000 as provided for in the proposed legislation

No provision for that sum has been made in the budget The railroads are fighting the Howell bill on the ground that the present transportation act has not had a chance to demonstrate its value A fight on railroad legislation may precipitate a controversy over the suggested repeal of the so-called guarantee clause Investors have been worried about the possibility for some time Should congress dispose of the question by failing to change the transportation act the holders of securities will be considerably cheered This is another important factor in the demand for an early adjournment of congress for the less the house and senate tinker with the business structure the better the interested parties like it and the more chance they say for a business revival in the remainder of 1924

The McNary Haugen bill will cause a real fight It may even delay adjournment The champion of the measure are in dead earnest and the opponents are insistent that no such piece of legislation will pass The differences are irreconcilable They represent two schools of thot on agricultural economics The president is preserving an attitude of apparent neutrality but his message to congress would seem to be a guide to his future attitude and there prevails at this time confidence that he will not sign the measure The fact that the Norbeck bill was beaten is taken nowadays as a precedent for in that fight thhe farm bloc was shattered A combination of southern Democrats and eastern Republicans beat the bill A similar alignment would kill the McNary Haugen bill and save the president the problem of acting on it at all Some of his friends are sure he will not have to act on it They want some agricultural legislation however and just now the Curtis Aswell bill seems to have administration favor It would attempt to co-ordinate farm cooperative organizations under a federal marketing board There are enough things on the calendar to delay adjournment The regular Democrats and Republicans will not block any adjournment but may be the radicals will

time ago as a Republican candidate for senator from Massachusetts this year Senator David I Walsh the Democratic incumbent being up for re election

It is now expected that Butler will withdraw from this contest devote himself entirely to the task of electing Mr Coolidge and if that is accomplished next November graduate into the new Coolidge cabinet

Three more decisions of paramount importance remain to be made with regard to the Cleveland convention the selection of a permanent chairman the designation of the man who will make the nominating speech for Mr Coolidge and lastly and more important the selection of a running mate

In view of the thoroughgoing manner in which Mr Coolidge has taken over the organization there was little doubt today but that he will make these decisions as he has made the others

The president is understood to be desirous of having Senator Borah of Idaho made either the nominating speech or sound the party call as permanent chairman As for the vice presidency Mr Coolidge is said thus far to have expressed no preference other than that the nominee be from the west and that he be 'regular' in everything the term implies

The passing of John T Adams as national chairman which will take place at Cleveland has long been anticipated Adams is generally identified with that group of Republican senators who have not always seen eye to eye with the white house He has consistently opposed the World court endorsed by both Harding and Hughes and has courageously said so in the face of white house disapproval

He likewise differed with the president over the dismissals of Edwin Denby as secretary of the navy and Harry M Daugherty as attorney general

A photo reorganization of the national committee will follow he retires on March 4 Frank L Lockwood secretary who edited or ship of the National Republican has brot him frequently into the limelight recently also will retire

The Chicka the dreaded strong arm secret police of Russia has a counterpart of this report is to be credited in the justice of the peace courts of Ohio The report dealing with Lucas county but Attorney General Crabbe has often said that the conditions there are no different from those which exist in other counties of the state

Following the complaint of Federal Judge Killits of Toledo Attorney General Crabbe instituted an investigation into the manner in which the prohibition laws were being enforced in Lucas co He sent Attorney H H Gorsuch of his own staff to Toledo to confer with members of the enforcement department of the state to Lucas co

Gorsuch reported today to the attorney general He gave no names in the case pending for those are in the hands of the county prosecutor of Lucas co But the instances of the prostitution of law in order that justices of the peace and other officers might make money under the Crabbe act were sufficiently interesting without names

Going off amid the report tells of such instances as these

Ten out of 21 justice courts in Lucas co disposed of 3128 cases since jurisdiction was conferred upon these courts for offenses committed within the city limits of Toledo

In one justice's court 1270 cases were tried and $43 494 80 in costs assessed as compared to but $157 400 in fines of which $81 898 were collected $22,922 suspended and $50,379 45 uncollected, with $2 200 in jail fines

The tendency to attempt to place law enforcement on the basis of business efficiency and the result which followed are illustrated by the figures quoted in this report

"The fact that most of the victims were foreigners ignorant of their rights under American legal procedure and accustomed to the arbitrary and to brutal procedure of Europe is cited in the report as one reason for the long suffering spirit of the citizens maligned in these complaints

Two New Men to Play with 'Regs' in Game Sunday

"Lefty" Kelly, former General Tires' hurler and Pete Clancy, an infielder are expected to be here Sunday to aid the Coshocton Regulars in defeating the Columbus Mendels at Lake Park.

Kelly is expected to do the hurling for the Regulars against the Mendels. This will be the big left hander's first game with the local club. Kelly won many games for the Tires of Akron last season, winning once over the Massillon Agathons.

Clancy may either be stationed at third or second base Sunday. He is considered a fast infielder and a good hitter. He formerly played baseball in Cleveland, the local management has been informed.

Manager Ansel's capital city men are coming here with the expectation of winning, he said in his recent letter. The Mendels have a winning combination and will make trouble for all clubs in the league.

Reserved seats for the game were on sale Friday. A record crowd is expected at Lake Park if the weather is favorable.

The probable battery for Sunday's game will be: Mendels—Griffith and Crossin; Coshocton—Kelly and Hildebrandt.

The game starts at 2:30 p. m.

RICHARDS RE-CONSIDERS

NEW YORK, May 2 Opinion in official tennis circles today was to the effect that Vincent Richards' reconsideration of his resignation fro mthe Davis cup team might prove an effective check upon the movement to have the player-writer rule rescinded. It was pointed out that Richards not only stated that those in control of the tennis association are sincere in their wish to help the game but added that he considered that they were supported by the sentiment of the majority, as evidenced by the vote in favor of the player-writer rule at the last general meeting.

Firpo Satisfied; Will Not Return Mayer Declares

By DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK, May 1—One Alfred Mayer, confidant and adviser of Luis Firbo, today added his lyric tenor to the chorus proclaiming the caveman's permanent retirement from affairs of the fist and gave the following as his reason for so believing.

That Firpo, as far as spending money is concerned, is still the $10 a week store attendant; that Firpo has an income of $500 a week for life, and perforce thinks this constitutes about all the money there is in the world.

Mayer, who is the New York representative of a string of South American newspapers, added that Firpo is averse to fighting again in America because he has been led to believe his money will be attached by those who claim to have the human hearth rug in the debt Grudging admission was also made of Luis' fear of a breach of promise suit, whispers of which have been wafed about Broadway

"It is my opinion that Firpo never will return to America," said Mayer. "If he does come back, it will not be for the money involved altho you may laugh at that statement Firpo will return to the ring only as the result of a national demand, such as influenced Jeffries to try again when Jack Johnson was champion

"The $200,000 that Tex Rickard has offered him for a Wills bout means nothing To a mind such as his, that bid of Rickards is like offering beer to a brewer Mark my words if Firpo comes back it will be because his countrymen force it on him

That the Argentinian is continuing to backfire on any attempt to hasten him hither was indicated by cabled dispatches received here late yesterday These stated that before starting on an automobile tour of Argentina, Firpo had sent cables to all interested parties here, denying any connection with Guillermo Widmer, who is on his way to this country Widmer was Firpo's secretary prior to and including the Dempsey frolic

Wants Under Sea Boat for Duck Hunting

Duck hunting in a submarine!

That sounds exciting, doesn't it? That is exactly what C C, McIntyre, railroad engineer of Brink Haven, is planning to do.

He is said to be negotiating with the United States government for the purchase of a discarded submarine. He is a fisherman and hunter, and plans to use the boat at his lodge on Drummond Island, Michigan.

He will rebuild it, however, for surface use, and will make no attempt to follow the water denizens to their subterranean abode.

Dempsey - Wills Bout Assured Rickard Avers

By DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK, May 2.—Tex Rickard, who stunned the pugilistic world late yesterday by announcing that Jack Dempsey and Harry Wills would meet in Jersey City September 6, with the world's heavyweight title at stake, will draw up articles of agreement today for the big extravaganza. Wills is said to have accepted Rickard's terms two days ago and is ready to say it on the dotted line. A duplicate contract will be mailed to Dempsey in Los Angeles and the interval before its arrival there will be utilized by Rickard in an exchange of long distance telephone calls with Jack Kearns, Dempsey's man of business.

According to a statement made by Rickard today, the champion virtually agreed to his terms the last time he was in New York and little remains beyond the formality of signing the articles. He will however, keep in constant touch with Kearns in order to clear up any difficulties that might arise.

No announcement has been made as the purse guaranteed Wills for the great occasion, but the amount is understood to fall short of $200,000, some capital having been made of the fact that Wills is to get his fling at the title finally after years of weary waiting.

Dempsey will work on a percentage basis, beyond a doubt. Jack took a guarantee of $300,000 for the Carpentier frolic and lost plenty, the "house" totalling well over $1,600,000. At that Dempsey cannot hope to drag in that much money at Jersey City again, even with Wills as the attraction, fifty dollars was the top price for Carpentier but twenty five is the limit in Jersey now.

Rickard's announcement was a tacit admission that two definite steps had been taken The first of these was the placating of political influence, which has long been opposed to Wills meeting Dempsey or any white man for the heavyweight title. The second was the virtual elimination of Luis Firpo as a title contender for the present season at least, Dempsey having proclaimed that he would fight but once this summer.

"Firpo is impossible," Rickard said today. "I have become convinced that he does not want to fight again and have instructed my Argentine agent, Juan Homs, to break off all negotiations with the Latin There is nothing further I can do with Firpo and have given him up as a bad job Why should I bother now? I think I have lined up a far better attraction in Wills."

Rickard has some big work before him in reconstructing the arena at Boyles Thirty Acres to insure safety for the great crowd that is certain to attend the affair The arena will seat upwards of 90,000 and it is estimated the receipts will total not less than $1,250,000 Of this amount Dempsey probably will be reimbursed to the amount of a cool half million at the very least

Second Kayo May Cost Carpentier a Bit of Prestige

VIENNA, May 2. Boxing judges today began consideration of Arthur Townley's protest against his double knockout by Georges Carpentier. The 8,000 spectators who saw Carpentier win shouted angry protests when the Frenchman uppercut Townley to the jaw after the latter was struggling to his feet following the count of ten. Townley was so weak he could not move his arm

Yankees Display Surprising Optimism that Grid Men Will Develop Class

By DAVID J. WALSH,
International News Service Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, May 1.—Disquieting precedent to the contrary, the New York Yankees have been pleased to daily overlong with three former football men of All-American calibre—Hinkey Haines, of Penn State; Luke Urban, Boston College, and Mike Gazella, of Lafayette—on the off chance that they will develop major league ways. The odds are all against it. Off hand we can think of only a few big league ball players who indulged in foot ball to any extent while in college.

Matty is said to have been quite a fullback in his salad days at Bucknell. Eddie Collins was a quarterback of average ability at Columbia, and Frank Frisch a backfield star of purely local moment at Fordham. They were probably better baseball players from first to last.

We do not claim these men to be the sole exceptions. Perhaps there are quite a few more, but that is non-essential. The point is that there seems to be little in common between major league baseball and ability on the gridiron.

Haines, for example, gained most of his fame at football before leaving college. So did Gazella. If either was as proficient in baseball they would have been major league stars long ago. As it is, Haines is a fine outfielder, but good pitching has him stopped. Gazella is just an average infield prospect. Urban is a fine end but an ordinary catcher.

Their cases are typical of other football stars who have tried the same trick. Perhaps the most flagrant examples are those of Jim Thorpe and Glenn Killinger. The Indian, rated by many as the greatest backfield man of all time, was a failure with the Giants, Reds and Braves because he couldn't hit curve ball pitching. Killinger, reigning star of the 1921 football campaign came up to the Yankees behind a loud ballyhoo and barely lasted through the training season.

About the same time the Cardinals were giving a trial to Vick, All-American center from Michigan; the Giants had Howard Berry, of Pennsylvania, and "Goat" Hale of Tennessee, in tow, and Johnny Mohardt, backfield star at Notre Dame, was trying to make the riffle in the Detroit outfield.

Berry and Mohardt were backfield stars of national repute and Hale is said to have been a terror in Southern football, but they passed away peacefully before the opening of the baseball season. It is our understanding that Vick is still on the reserve list of the Cardinals, but that fact has produced no great hilarity in St. Louis.

Capron, of Minnesota, was one of the first of the big time football men to muff his chance in the big leagues. He could kick field goals with marked regularity in the Western Conference, but that proved of no value to the Pirates and Phils. Neither could Paul Castner's great kicking with Notre Dame get him by as an American League pitcher. We think he was with the White Sox until Kid Gleason found out about it.

The Zanesville Greys journey to Barnesville Sunday for the former's first league game away from home. The Greys will likely be opposed on the hill by Wells, while Carmichael or Kime will do the twirling for Zanesville.

Tagging The Bases

Wayland Dean turned in $50,000 worth of pitching in confining the Braves to one run while the Giants were trifling with Genewich, McNamara and Yeargin for nine. Herr Groh led the triflers with four hits.

The Browns made merry at the expense of Young Whitehill, home runs by Williams, Tobin and Jacobson, aiding in the 8 to 7 defeat of the Tigers. Sisler and Cobb each obliged with three hits.

The Cubs wafted out a matter of 17 hits for 28 bases off May and Mays and won, going away from the Reds, 8 to 1. The victory gave the Cubs possession of second place.

After winning eight in a row, the Yankees finished second to the Senators 3 to 2 in spite of the fact that they eased Walter Johnson into the locker room in the seventh. Marbury finished the pastime and managed to last to the wire, altho hit hard.

Milton Stock again took an active part in a Dodger victory, the ex-Cardinal driving out three hits during the casual excitement contiguous to a 10-to-4 decision over the Phillies.

A dropped thrown ball by Shaute started the White Sox off on the right foot in the opening inning and they never stopped, socking all comers for the remainder of the day and beating the Indians, 13 to 7.

DAILY NEWS LETTER

General News and Gossip from Staff Writers At Home and Abroad

TODAY:

Royalty to Fete Americans.

By DAVID M. CHURCH, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

LONDON, May 2—The King and Queen are preparing to make a gesture of friendship to the United States.

A garden party will be given at Buckingham Palace in June by the King and Queen for the members of the American Bar Association and the Canadian Bar Association, who will then be in convention in London.

This is a most unusual procedure, as the King and Queen rarely attempt the entertainment of foreigners on a large scale.

It is also considerable gesture because of the fact that the expenses of the royal household are rather rigidly provided for, and the expenditure for this garden party may come from the private funds of the King himself.

The Summer garden parties at Buckingham Palace are eagerly awaited by the English society folk, and the fact that Americans are to have a party all to themselves has caused no little discussion, particularly in those circles where there is bemoaning of the scarcity of tickets for the usual garden parties.

The King always takes a lively interest in Americans, and is said to be looking forward to the meeting of the American lawyers with a great deal of interest. The Queen also is interested in America and never allows an American to be presented to her without asking a few questions concerning life and conditions in the new world. It is one of the Queen's great ambitions to visit the United States, but it is doubtful whether this will ever be arranged, as the demands upon the reigning sovereigns in their own Empire are too great

The Prince of Wales' side of the controversy over the advisability of his being permitted to engage in racing has been finally presented. When the Prince took his last fall the newspapers of England came out with positive demands that the Prince give up racing. After every argument had been advanced one paper came out with a defense for the Prince, and there are intimations that the defense was inspired by the Prince or those close to him. "We don't want a mollycoddle for a Prince," the newspaper declared, and went on to argue that the Prince has won his great popularity by the very fact that he had engaged in the sort of life that England's best sporting men engage in.

Queen Mary is engaged in supporting an effort to change the feminine styles. The Queen is greatly interested in the lace industry and particularly in the Nottingham lace industry. Present modes and fashions exclude the use of lace and the industry in England has reached a low level. The Queen is doing her utmost to encourage the use of lace and to bring its use into fashion.

King George is preparing for his annual Summer vacation—the one that he enjoys most. Every Summer the King spends five days with the fleet at sea, and inasmuch as he has always loved the sea, it is said that he looks forward to these five days with the greatest anticipation.

There will be a great deal of royal entertainment in London this Summer. The King and Queen of Italy will come to England in May, and there will probably be visits from the King and Queen of Belgium, and possibly from the King and Queen of Spain.

Roosevelt Makes Smith Candidacy Look Different

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
I. N. S. Staff Corp't.

WASHINGTON, May 2. — The Democratic national convention which meets in New York eight weeks hence, is due for a protracted period of deadlock and intensive, bitter struggle such as has been witnessed at few if any of Democracy's Hectic conventions in the past.

This was the well-nigh unanimous opinion prevailing in high Democratic quarters in the capital today, as a result of the developments that have crystallized with amazing rapidity since the sudden and dramatic death a week ago of Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany hall and one of the most powerful single individuals in the party. Two weeks ago Democratic leaders were merely fearful they were in for a rough time at Madison Square Garden, now they are sure of it.

For the first time since the whispers of Gov. Al. Smith's candidacy began to be heard, Democratic leaders of all factions were disposed to take it with seriousness.

The formation of a Smith organization, headed by Franklin D. Roosevelt, a "Wilson Democrat," and one of the few men who ever fought Murphy and got away with it, provided the complacent Democrats of other factions with a real shock today.

Heretofore, the McAdoo men, the Underwood men, the Davis men, the Ralston men and the spokesmen of nearly all minor candidates, have dismissed the Smith candidacy with a deprecatory wave of the hand and simply muttered, "Tammany!"

They were not disposed to dismiss the Smith candidacy so lightly today.

The death of Murphy and the drafting of Roosevelt, who was a vice presidential nominee four years ago and popular with the Wilson element of the party, it was admitted, has lifted the Smith candidacy for the plan of Tammany and placed it before the party and the country in an altogether different light

Inspired perhaps by the rapid turn of events, Tammaany congressmen were privately predicting about the capitol today that Smith will give McAdoo battle for supremacy on the first ballot at the convention and that thereafter his "hidden strength" from the unpledged delegates will carry him into the lead early in the game.

Only time will show whether their rosy predictions are true. But at all events, it was candidly conceded among Democrats today that the candidacy of the New York governor has in the short space of one week, leaped from an inauspicious bud into a full blown flower that promises to be featured in many buttonholes around Madison Square Garden next June.

S.S.S. stops Rheumatism

And with it pain and its probability of reaching the heart.

wonderful glory again in the free motion I used to have when my days were younger. I look at my hands and think of the twists and swellings they used to have. I bend way over to the floor. I haven't been able to do that in many years. I can thank S. S. S. for it all! To me it was a rising sun of joy and liberty. Brothers and sisters in misery, do not close your eyes and think that health, free motion and strength are gone from you forever! It is not so. It is here and now for all of you. S. S. S. is waiting to help you." There is a reason why S. S. S. will help you. When you increase the number of your red-blood-cells, the entire system undergoes a tremendous change. Everything depends on blood-strength. Blood which is minus sufficient red-cells leads to a long list of troubles. Rheumatism is one of them. S. S. Personal Finances of the Presidents

By W. E. Chancellor

ANDREW JACKSON
1767-1845

The Backwoodsman Who Understood Finance

Jackson was the first man to rise from the destitute poor to the presidency. At his birth, March 15, 1767, his parents were immigrants, fresh from Ireland. They lived in the back country on boundary line between the Carolinas and owned scarcely enough to clothe their backs.

At twelve years of age, Andrew had lost both parents and his two brothers, and was in a Tory prison On his face was a scar from the sword of a British soldier whose shoes he had refused to black

In 1791, he married Mrs. Rachel Donelson Robards, not yet divorced from her husband She had nothing.

In 1815, at the battle of New Orleans, General Jackson repaid the British for the sword cut by sending 1200 soldiers to their graves, half of them with bullet holes in the middle of their foreheads. Only seven Americans were killed, and only six admitted that they were wounded.

After fighting Indians, British and Spaniards as a General, and being judge, senator, farmer, trader and real estate dealer, in 1529 General Jackson, who had never attended school or studied law, became President of the United States. But Rachel had died in December, 1828, of a broken heart because of the slanders of the political campaigns. Among other questions, men asked how General Jackson had gotten his $59,000 worth of property, worth as much as $200,000 now

Jackson freely admitted that he helped slaves to run away from their cruel Spanish and Indian masters. His enemies said that he sold them to Americans for gold

In his eight years as President, he placed all American business firmly upon a gold basis, realizing thereby the hopes of George Washington. He had converted all American politics to the spoil system, to the horror of all conservatives

Old hero spent all his salary of $25,000 a year, in generous entertainment of his friends and the general public. Then he retired to his farm, "The Hermitage" near Nashville, to die, on June 8, 1845 of tuberculosis from which he had suffered for a score of years

In his seventy-eight years, he had earned or made in business $300,000 His estate of $70,000, gold, equal to $250,000 now, in purchasing power, was distributed by will to the kindred of his beloved wife and to various public uses.

Three Groups of Army Flyers May Meet Near Tokio

WASHINGTON, May 2 — The globe circling army flyers representing the United States, England and France are all three expected to meet in Tokio, Japan according to calculations made today by the war department aviation experts who have been watching closely the performances of the three nations' representatives. The probable date of the meeting is put at May 10 or 11, barring serious mishaps or long stretches of bad weather

The British flyer, Major Stuart MacLaren, is today in Calcutta India, flying around the world in the opposite direction from the Americans and the French are Lieut. Pelletier D'Oisy, who left Paris after MacLaren was half way to Asia, one day's jump from Calcutta in his effort to beat MacLaren to Tokio.

The Americans have seven jumps from Dutch Harbor, Alaska, where they were still halted today waiting on Major Frederick L. Martin, their chief, the Briton has the same number of flying days and the Frenchman eight days of flying to make Tokio.

If the Americans take off from Alaska tomorrow they must stop at Nazan and Chicagoff in the Aleutian Islands, and at Bettobo, Minoto, and then Kasumigoura, which is the Japanese landing for Tokio. The British and French airmen, both of whom are following the same course, have to make stops at Calcutta and Akyab in India, Bangkok in Siam, Hanoi in Indo-China, Canton, Shanghai and Peking in China and Hardjon and Tachiarai in Japan before reaching Tokio

To date D'Oisy has made 6,000 kilometers in five days, MacLaren has made 8,700 kilometers in 26 days, the Portuguese expedition to the far east 6,600 kilometers in 23 days, while the Americans who had bad weather in Alaska and who announced at the start of the flight that they were not out for speed, have accomplished only 7,000 kilometers in 41 days.

Oil Man Accuses Wheeler of Act Violating Laws

WASHINGTON, May 2—A sensation was sprung before the Borah committee today when William W. Rhea, western oil man, charged Senator Burton K. Wheeler, Democrat of Montana with promising to "fix up" an oil permit for a group of Montana law clients—an act which would violate federal statutes.

Rhea's testimony bore directly upon the charges which resulted in Wheeler's indictment by a federal grand jury in Montana

Rhea charged that Gordon Campbell, who handled the permits agreed to pay Wheeler a "slice of profits," if the senator obtained it from the government

The new type, sanitary Red Star Oil Stove is like NO OTHER oil stove in the world.

Thousands of enthusiastic women already know this; but we want EVERY woman to know it. We want every woman to know why the Red Star is so different from other stoves; why it cookes as fast as gas, but uses oil for fuel.

The best way we can have every woman know this is to have them actually see a Red Star stove in operation.

Two things especially delight the women who see it. One is the unusual beauty of the stove with its smooth flowing stream lines combined with the sanitary white porcelain and black enamel finish. The other is the absense of wicks or wick substitutes.

All this week we will have an actual demonstration of this wonderful oil stove at our store. We invite you to come. See how the patented burned vaporizes kersosene. See how wicks or wick substitutes have been abolished. See how two blue rings of clean, odorless flame are forced right against the bottom of the utensil—where the heat belongs. DO YOU TREAT YOUR HUMAN MACHINE OR YOUR CAR BEST

Not All Makes of Cars—or People Can Stand Same Knocks, Says Dr. Frances Scott

If the average person got from his automobile as few miles per gallon of gas, as much engine trouble or as irregular service as most of us are content to get from our bodies, he would change makes. Dr. Frances Scott, of Smith College, before the sixth annual conference of the Young Women's Christian Association in Vermont, yesterday said that people are as different as the varied types of cars.

"Machines are built for the purpose to which they are to be put, whether trucks, town cars or racing models," she said. "Yet we as individuals have capacities as different that we too often fail to recognize. People vary as much as cars. It is folly for a slender high strung person needing extra sleep, food and recreation to attempt to live on the same routine as the stock type who thrives on hard work and little rest. To be a success and get the most out of your life, know what type of car you are and recognize your physical limitations In spite of fads that try to make us all look and act alike, from Maine to California, we still remain individuals."

Young women today are attempting to run their bodies on poor or insufficient fuel, care and repair "No car owner would try to use molasses instead of gasoline, leave out the oil and let the carbon accumulate," she continued. "Yet we try to run our human machines on food that is far from normal. We put distorting shoes on our feet, throw our muscles away, and buy braces. We grow moods, grouches and tempers that make the engine knock and all the time feel a bit heroic and proud that we can 'get along.' Such a machine as ours under these conditions would have no resell value in terms of performance."

"Mere mental efficiency is not the whole aim in life, but our brains and spirit bear a direct relationship to the health of our bodies. Intellectual keenness, sanity of spirit and pleasure in work have all dependence upon our bodily health."

The conference that attracted hundreds of girls from the rural communities in Vermont was under the direction of Miss Marion Gary, secretary of the Vermont Young Women's Christian Association and her associate, Miss Elizabeth Leavens. The conference took place at Middlebury College, Middlebury. Dr. Scott was one of a number of speakers on a wide range of topics.

Knutson Denies Unusual Charge

CLARENDON, Va, May 1.—Claiming the officers who arrested him had made "a terrible mistake," congressman Harold Knutson, Republican of Minn. resumed the witness stand in his trial before a jury here today and proclaimed his innocence of the unnatural statutory charge made against him and a companion, Leroy M Hull, a government clerk.

Knutson and Hull were arrested late at night on lonely country road here in the congressman's sedan which had been parked in a road leading into the woods.

"I am innocent," he told the jury.

The congressman appeared cool and collected on the stand. He declared when the officers arrested him he was under the impression he was being arrested for a violation of the motor parking regulation and it was not until he was in jail that he learned of the revolting charge placed against him.

Turn into a papered cake tin and bake in moderate oven for three-quarters of an hour. Sufficient for one cake. When cake is cool pour on the frosting, which is made as follows:

Put unbeaten white of one egg into shallow dish; add gradually 1 ½ cups sugar and two tablespoonfuls of cocoa which have been mixed together, beating with wire whip until of right consistency to spread; add 1 teaspoon vanilla extract and spread on cake.

New Plane is Built to Fight or Bomb from an Altitude of 30,000 Ft.

DAYTON, Ohio, May 2. — The most efficient aerial engine of death, conceived since aviation was invented, has been completed at McCook field. It is an airplane built to fight at 30,000 feet.

It will be subjected to severe tests next Monday. Officials at the field say it is a combination fighting plane, that is: it can be used for bombing and for aerial fighting.

It has a speed of only 135 miles an hour and is equipped with a super-charger which feeds sea level air into the combustion chamber at from 18,000 feet up. This makes high altitude work possible.

It mounts machine guns, bomb racks and special aerial photography equipment, carries receiving and sending radio sets and is the last word in airplane construction. It is said that in warfare the new plane will be especially deadly. It resembles the TP-1 in which Lieutenant Harold R Harris recently set a world's record with 555 pounds of dead weight.

Romance Dies Every Year

EVERY now and then some wiseacre has a blue day and tries to take it out on the race by chronicling the death of romance. The latest deathblow, some one discovers, is inflicted by so simple a thing as a gyroscope stabilizer to keep vessels from rolling except in heavy storms. The romance of the sea was about over, anyhow, he says, and this is one of "the final coffin nails."

Romance died when steam replaced sails, when the railroad crowded out coach travel, when the telephone spoiled all the situations founded on notes that were never delivered. The truth is romance dies every time some one discovers that his digestion is more important than his emotions. He doesn't want to be alone, so he kills off romance for all the world.

It doesn't bother anybody much. The young lovers, who in the old romantic days could never have gone on a horseback expedition, are taking the trolley to the country for a summer holiday. The poor lad for whom we are asked to grieve because he can not dream of the joys of piracy is busy listening to talk that goes on a thousand miles at sea.

Romance must have died long ago if it had been made of iron armor or viking galleys or of muzzle loaders and sailing vessels. These things it used, but it still thrives when they are gone. The poor soul who tells us romance is dead but makes unwitting confession of the poverty into which his own life has come.

How Do They Know It?

A NOTED BIOLOGIST has given it out that, in his opinion, there are, roughly, in this country 45,000,000 people "who have no sense." The question which naturally arises is how he found it out and whether he includes everybody with the bunch or lines some up with himself and the bunch of highbrows who make it their business to catalog and standardize others according to their own notions of what is sense and just how much of it every human being ought to possess.

Every schoolboy has read how it was that the first Brutus of a noble and distinguished Roman family came by the name which he passed down to his descendants. The Roman highbrows thot he was a fool, and he was only fooling them. Brutus isn't the only historical character who has thus been misjudged. There are others.

When it comes to classifying the human race according to a standard that makes it possible to put forth such wise statements as that a majority of the human race is composed of adult people who have the mental development of a 14-year-old child, it is time to ask how it is possible to fathom the intellectual capacity of a great multitude whose best intellectual powers have not been called into action, because it is emergencies or the stress of necessity that call the qualities of judgment and initiative into use, even tho all educational methods and scientific tests may have failed to bring them out.

Ford Wants What He Wants

THE keystone in all legislation enacted for the conservation of the nation's natural resources is the statute limiting the term of water power, mineral and other leases to private individuals and corporations to a period not to exceed fifty years.

The basis of Henry Ford's negotiations with the government for the Muscle Shoals water power rights and the federal improvements already made is a hundred-year lease. Here is a direct conflict which Mr. Ford does not even deign to discuss. "I, Henry the First, demand a hundred-year lease; that or nothing."

To Mr. Ford a fixed governmental policy based on the wisdom and experience of four consecutive administrations, two Republican and two Democratic, means nothing. He wants what he wants and he knows what he wants, an admirable basis for negotiations and the driving of a hard bargain. Mr. Ford is rich. He has vast quantities of money. Money means power and men like Ford who know how to make money know how to exercise power. On the subject of Ford and Muscles Shoals an exchange significantly observes:

"Henry Ford started twenty years ago with an idea and a few thousand dollars of borrowed capital. The result is the Ford Motor Company, free of debt and with $271,618,668 in its treasury at the end of 1923. Now Ford has another idea and capital to back it. He thinks that he might do wonders with Muscle Shoals, with its 850,000-horse power, about one-third of all the water power remaining undeveloped in the south. On it the United States government has spent more than $80,000,000. Part of it is a war loss, but the scrap value is from $11,000,000 to $16,000,000. For it Ford has offered $5,000,000, subject to the subtraction of $3,472,478.25 that the government is to spend to duplicate a steam plant it has sold.

That leaves $1,527,512.75, but when he pays that sum Ford requires that there be turned over to him $500,000 worth of platinum in the United States subtreasury at New York, intended for use in extracting nitrogen from the air. So for slightly more than $1,000,000 he would obtain property representing an expenditure of $80,000,000 and in return promises to use something less than 100,000-horse power to make fertilizer to be sold to farmers on an 8 per cent. basis. The house accepted that offer. It rejected these amendments to the bill:

> An obligation to produce continuously a specified minimum quantity of fertilizer. A requirement that the proposed Ford corporation should conform to the national water power policy. Submission to public regulation and sale of power not used for fertilizer manufacture. Acceptance of a lease by Mr. Ford of the nitrate plants rather than their purchase. Reversion of title to the plants and forfeiture of the power to lease in event the proposed Ford corporation failed to comply with any material obligation assumed.

"As the bill was passed by the house Ford and his successors would have practically a free hand for 100 years with a great natural resource, already partly developed. Granted that he used less than one-eighth of the power to make fertilizer—at 8 per cent. profit—what of the remainder? One Mayo, who represented Ford, said at one of the house hearings: 'Mr. Ford expects to use that power himself. It is not a question of selling the power.' From that Representative Kearns jumped to the conclusion 'that he does not intend to sell the farmer electricity to light his house, to grind feed for his stock or to run his tractors or to light cities or dwellings or to turn the wheels of industries.'

"Ford, twenty years ago, had an idea and no money. Now he has money—and an idea that he could make more money if he had that plant on the proposed basis."

It is really discouraging to contemplate the attitude of Congress on this proposition. It is poor business and the wonder is that the business sense of congressmen does not tell them so. Perhaps it has, but perhaps other considerations with which sound business has nothing to do have also entered into the negotiations between Mr. Ford and Congress.

It has even been intimated that Ford's sudden conversion from a LaFollette radical to a Coolidge conservative and his statement that Mr. Coolidge must be elected to the Presidency has had something to do with the willingness of Congress to favor the Ford bid for Muscle Shoals in the face of higher bids and more favorable terms to the government. We, of course, have no knowledge concerning this and, therefore cannot express an intelligent opinion as to these intimations of a close relationship between the White House and Mr. Ford.

All we can say is that if Mr. Coolidge has purchased Mr. Ford's support for the presidency on the promise that the White House would do what it could to secure Muscle Shoals for the automobile manufacturer and Mr. Ford has purchased the presidential influence in his efforts to get this vast power right for practically nothing by his promise to keep out of the presidential race and personally support Mr. Coolidge for that job, then Mr. Coolidge is not a fit man for the presidency and Henry Ford is not a fit man to be the recipient at any price of water power equal to one-third of all the undeveloped water power in the South.

LOCAL HERDS PRAISED

Clark, Ohio.
April 30, 1924.

Editor The Tribune:

In the issue of April 26 of The Tribune I see an article headed, "Dairy Herd Mark Poor," and wish to compliment Joseph Slaughter, G. S. Sicker and George Gray for the accomplishment of the remarkable records spoken of in this article.

In looking over the records of these dairies I wonder if the many readers of your paper really know how remarkable these records are.

I am tester for the Ohio Valley Cow Testing Association of Belmont County and will endeavor to give you a few of the figures of our 1923 records which is the highest averaging record of any Association in the United States to date for butterfat.

An average of 182.1 cows were tested during the year, average milk production 7402 lbs. per cow, average fat production 366.2 lbs. per cow.

Of the total number of cows tested for the year only 13 produced over 10,000 lbs. of Milk, 10 of which were Holsteins. The three Jerseys were owned by The Mooney Stock Farm and are on semi-official long time test. Seven of the Holstein cows are owned by Carroll and Ebbert, St. Clairsville, O.

One cow produced 20,656 lbs. of milk and 644.8 lbs. butterfat. Another cow produced 16,142 lbs. milk and 618.9 lbs. fat.

The above are the only cows in the entire association that produced over 600 lbs. fat in the year.

Twelve others produced over 500 lbs. of butter fat of which five were Holsteins and 7 were Jerseys. The highest Jersey cow for the year was 11,753 lbs milk and 565.50 lbs. fat.

Only 20 cows produced over 9000 lbs. of milk. 38 over 8,000 lbs. and 80 over 7000 lbs. of milk. 24 of the 7,000 lb. cows were Holsteins. It is interesting to note that I only had 27 Holstein cows on test during the year. 151 were Jerseys and four of other breeding.

Of the 18 herds on test 6 produced over 400 lbs. butter fat per cow, 5 of which are recognized as among the 10 highest herds of the State of Ohio. The highest averaging herd for butter fat in this state is the herd of 7.4 Reg. Holstein cows owned by Carroll and Ebert which is 15,625 lbs. milk and 530.7 lbs. butter fat per cow. The second highest in my association is the herd of Geo. A. Korner and Son containing 12.9 Reg. Jerseys with an average of 8,048 lbs. milk and 445.2 lbs. fat.

Carroll and Ebberts' herd was not placed first in Prof. McKellip's article to the Ohio Farmer because they had a herd of less than 10 cows. He preferred a herd of about 14 cows and an average of slightly over 500 lbs. fat in this article.

The records I have given were from Dec. 1, 1922 to Nov. 30, 1923, and as this includes the months any cow was dry, it is not fair to compare the figures I have given with 365 day Register of Merit records as are the records of Mr. Slaughter, Mr. Sicker and Mr. Gray. For example take the Mooney Stock Farm herd of 16 Reg. Jerseys. Their Register of Merit year averages are 525 lbs. fat per cow, and their association year average 412 lbs. fat.

It is interesting to know that the average yearly fat production of cows in United States is approximately 160 lbs. butter fat. That the goal set by the U. S. Dept. of Dairying for the year 1924 is 280 lbs. fat per cow testing association, that records are kept on only 2 percent of the dairy cows in U. S., that cows are not very profitable at 300 lbs. fat per year, that the average milk production of U. S. is only 3,527 lbs. per cow, that the champion cow of the world is a Holstein which produced 37,384 lbs. milk.

Will any one wonder why some people say, "There is little money in cows." Would it not be a wise thing for some of the dairymen of Coshocton Co. to weed out the poor cows of their herd by the use of an inexpensive milk-testing outfit and a few hours each month spent testing milk samples.

New York Day-by-Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

FOR FRIDAY htBhWs

NEW YORK. May 2.—Thots while strolling around New York: Antique shops. Thick with silence. And tallboys. Worm-eaten chairs. Cracked vases and parlor whatnots. A restaurant called "The Forty Thieves." They must employ many waiters. Back-the-same-day laundries.

A priest clipping his rose bushes. Three radios broadcasting "Mama Loves Papa!" And Marconi labored for this. A Jap valet agency. Run by a red headed Irishman. There's George Creel. Laborers wanted in Brazil. Boys flying kites in narrow streets.

Aloof Murray Hill. Where even groceries are signless. The only section in midtown with front yards. A few iron deer. The Morgan home. Overtone of frigidity. Butlers whose gaze at the hoi-polloi is tinged with insolence.

Circulating libraries for the classics only. Door-scrapers and huge knockers. Side yard wistaria bowers. Like the forgotten perfumes of a sonata. Decayed mansions that once blazed with social brilliance. Sic transit gloria mundi—and a cup of coffee.

An East Side pariah in astrakhan cap and frayed shawl cape. Hunting for stray cigar stumps. Wonder if I'll have to face old age poverty. The swirling outskirts of the shopping district. A new tempo to life. A rush and push.

Fred Stone in a furniture shop. The unforgettable din of a hundred trip hammers. Building, building—always building. O, for a quiet valley with hushed days and nights. Intellectuals going to hear a reading by Edna St. Vincent Millay. Even her name is poetical.

Thin lipped art dealers. Who always seem preoccupied. The old Astor stables—now a cafe where patrons eat in the stalls. For top high prices. A window filled with bright yellow canaries. And a cat looks hungrily on. Now for home.

The radio has put a heavy crimp in the sale of phonograph records. A Fifth Avenue dealer tells me the most popular record of the season has had a sale of slightly more than one hundred thousand. Before the radio the best seller often reached 800,000.

"Abie's Irish Rose" is approaching its third year on Forty Second Street. When it opened it was "Broadway's best laugh." All the critics chortled and wise theatrical owls stood in the lobby making smart cracks. They even grinned at the silk hat of the play's press agent. The play has the same smashing appeal as the comic strip and it is of the same low comedy order. The biggest laugh in the show is gained from the ancient quip:

"Where was Abie shot?"

"He was shot in the Argonne."

Five companies are now touring in the play and Ann Nichols who wrote it has an income from this source alone of more than $6,000 a week. It is a play that the wiseacres cannot laugh off.

The best hotels are trying to discourage promiscuous drinking in rooms. The wear and tear on carpets and furniture has proved tremendous and to put a stumbling block in the way they are exacting a high service charge for the use of cocktail glasses, shakers and cracked ice. Orange juice is now a dollar a very small glass and a charge of 50 cents each is made for cocktail glasses. The shaker is also rated at a dollar. One hotel announces that since prohibition the damage by drinks spotting carpets has amounted to more than $100,000.

WALT MASON

THE RAINMAKER

There was no hopeful sign of rain: all parched and blistered was the plain, burned up the nutmegs and the oats, and singed the whiskers of the goats. So fierce a drouth had not shown up, men said, since Hector was a pup. Then came Professor Bunkum Bain, who had a scheme for making rain. "For seven thousand bones," said he, "I'll make this country like a sea, with water sloshing all around, refreshing all this burned up ground." When first we heard his words we laughed, and said his was a foolish graft; we would not fall for such a fake; no man had power a rain to make. And still the skies were hard and blue; by night there wasn't even dew; the cattle sought the river's brink and couldn't find a drop to drink. Then we agreed with Wizard Bain to pay the price he asked for rain. So he put up a tall tin pipe, and burned some chemicals or tripe, and made some passes with his hand, and rain came down and soaked the land. The water poured, day after day, and washed our shed and coops away, and slung our houses out of line, and drowned a thousand head of swine. And so we roasted Wizard Bain, and said such people should be slain. No man should let the water drop unless he knows just when to stop; no man should turn a torrent loose unless he can shut off the juice. And so the learned Professor Bain can't get his pay for making rain.

The tree with the fruit gets the clubs and knocks.

The Question About Bess Dean That Perplexed Madge.

"NOW you've done it!" Katherine murmured maliciously to Dicky as we hurried up the stairs.

"Done what?" he demanded roughly, but I noticed that he kept his voice to the level of hers.

"Put the voodoo on the house," she laughed, and then with a complete change of manner, she said gravely:

"Don't say anything to Mrs. Durkee about the maid's behavior."

"Or mine, I suppose," Dicky retorted, but I noticed with gratification that there was uneasiness in his face.

He is altogether too prone to ridiculous jesting tricks in season and out of season, and I was not sorry to see him discomfited. He wiped everything but smiles from his face, however, when we reached Mrs. Durkee's door, and the little woman held out a thin little hand to us.

"You mustn't hug me," she warned, indicating her right side, while Katherine hovered watchfully near. "It's all right, you know, everything in splendid shape—Dr. Braithwaite discharged me before he went—but the flesh is terribly tender, and I have to be careful. But you may kiss me."

She held up her lips first to me, and then, with a coquettish little pout, to Dicky—he declares that the first thing she does beyond the pearly gates will be to make eyes at St. Peter—and he kissed her warmly.

Leila came into the room and my arms at the same moment, and then Mrs. Durkee went into childish ejaculations of delight over the flowers which Katherine had taken from Dicky and unwrapped.

Homage to "Her Fluffiness."

"Oh! Oh! Dicky-bird! How perfectly scrumptious!" she caroled. "But of course, part of them"—she turned to her daughter-in-law with an affectionate little smile.

"Are for Leila," Dicky assented promptly. "We don't want to spoil you, you know. Too much attention is apt to turn your brain."

"It's a wonder you don't say I haven't enough to turn," she retorted, pouting. "That's the usual line of talk you hand me."

"Oh, but you are mistaken!" Dicky assured her. "That's a bouquet I reserve strictly for the lady who has the honor to be my wife. And then again, I make it a principle never to hit a lady unless she is in full possession of her health and strength. You're really not fair game. But, ma cherie, you are standing. Permit me?"

With an entire change of manner he drew forward a big armchair, and put her into it with all the grace of a courtier. She beamed upon him as he drew a low chair close to her and took one of her hands in his, keeping it there while he talked low nonsense to her. She bridled and flushed as if she were sixteen and he a year older, while I followed Leila to the window seat, where our speech, if we kept our voices to a low murmur, could not be overheard.

Leila Confides in Madge.

"How is she?" I asked anxiously.

"Perfectly all right, I think," she replied. "She appears to be getting stronger every day. Of course, you'll have to ask Mrs. Bickett concerning her recovery from the operation. I can only judge from her general appearance. If it weren't for that maid—you saw her, didn't you, downstairs?"

"Indeed we did," I replied, thankful that Dicky's ridiculous altercation with the dusky damsel had not reached the ears of Leila or her mother-in-law.

"Then you know what we're up against. Mother Durkee is so prejudiced against maids anyway, and this one is so impertinent and sulky. If just Alf and I were by ourselves I'd discharge her in a second, have a woman in by the day for the heaviest work, and do the rest myself.

"But you know how Mother Durkee is," she smiled. "She'd never let me do the work by myself, and Dr. Braithwaite said it was imperative that she have absolute rest from both work and worry for awhile. Mrs. Bickett and I have managed so far to keep her away from this room—we take all care of it ourselves—so Mother Durkee never has come in contact with the maid except for a 'good morning,' but what we'll do when she does get downstairs I don't know. And maids are so hard to get—this was positively the last hope, and she's really quite efficient except for her sulkiness."

Leila's whisper trailed away into a tired little sigh, and looking more closely at her I saw that the lines of nervous fatigue had not disappeared from her face, as I had hoped they would do when Bess Dean was eliminated from her daily life. The every-day domestic problems were evidently as wearing as the emotional ones. But I brought myself up with a round turn at a query which flashed just then into my brain.

How did I know that Bess Dean WAS no longer a factor in Leila's emotional life?

YOUR HEALTH

Why Anesthesia Is One of Surgery's Finest Aids

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
United States Senator from New York,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

WHEN I was a medical student, if a man had an accident and as a result of the accident had to have his leg taken off, it meant that he would have weeks and weeks in the hospital. Pus would form in the wound. Every day there would form quarts of what was called "laudable pus."

Along came a man, Sir Joseph Lister, who got the idea that the germs which produced pus were in the air. So he sprayed carbolic acid and other solutions into the air to kill the germs. This prepared the way for the beginning of what we call modern surgery. The surgeon ventured to close the wound with an exclusive dressing of cotton and gauze, wrapped it up and left it for several days.

This seemed horrible to the old-time doctors. They said the patient would die, but the patient didn't die. On the contrary, instead of taking weeks to heal, this wound would heal in a few days, perhaps within a week.

Nowadays it is a rather unusual thing to cut off a leg. The doctors have found ways of healing the wound and bringing the parts together. They are able to save limbs and to save life.

When I was a boy it was believed that if you stuck even a pin through the abdominal wall, the injured person would die. Usually such accidents were fatal because the wounds became infected. It was not until modern surgery came in that it was possible to open the abdominal cavity. As a result thousands of people now are having serious operations on the abdominal cavity and are speedily cured.

The modern surgeon has done still more. He opens the skull, takes a tumor out of the brain in such a way that no pus forms. No bad effects follow.

All this progress is due to the acceptance of the germ theory of disease. In the old days we did not know why people had illnesses. Then the scientists discovered that disease is due to germs. Pus formation is due to germ infection.

So the modern surgeon scrubs his hands and his finger-nails, makes his hands clean and to be certain that they are clean, wears rubber gloves that have been boiled. All the instruments he uses are boiled. After the operation has been performed, a surgical dressing is adjusted to exclude all contact with germs. As a result of modern surgery, millions of lives have been saved.

It was a very serious thing in the old days to go to the hospital. Bellevue was a thing to be dreaded. It was not because of any lack of skill at Bellevue Hospital, but just because they had not discovered germs.

Today deaths from surgery are rare. We owe more to modern surgery than to any other single factor in modern life. It has done more to relieve suffering and prolong life than any other factor.

The discovery of the anesthetic has done much good. You know some of the most terrible pictures you see are the pictures of the early operations where they held the man down during the operation. With the discovery of anesthesia surgical methods have been revolutionized.

After anesthetics were discovered the doctors had to learn how to use them and what the complications were. Now an operation is not the formidable thing it was at all. I do not mean that I would anticipate it with the same pleasure I would a ball game, but I would not dread it.

The anesthetic is given in such a way that you feel nothing, and by the time you recover consciousness the painful condition is gone. One of the most helpful aids to modern surgery is the discovery of anesthesia and the modern safe ways of using it.

Answers to Health Questions

A. L. Q.—While working or exercising strenuously I perspire freely. What can you advise me to do?

A.—It is normal to perspire freely when exercising. Excessive perspiration is due to nerve stimulation. After bathing use a solution of alum, 2 drachms to a pint of water. This will help you.

AN APPRECIATIVE READER. Q.—Does diphtheria affect the heart permanently? Is there anything that may be done for the child in this case?

2.—What causes poor circulation? What will improve this condition?

3.—Does extraction of the teeth effect a cure of pyorrhea?

A.—Not as a rule. The child should be kept under the doctor's care until the condition clears up.

2.—Anemia would cause this condition. Try building up the blood supply by getting lots of outdoor exercise, plenty of rest and sleep, good nourishing food, etc.

3.—It usually does.

* * *

HENRY F. Q.—Would you kindly advise me where to get a book on the care and treatment of the hair?

2.—What would you advise for an oily skin?

A.—You may get such a book at any public library.

2.—Apply hot and cold compresses to the skin for ten minutes each, night and morning.

* * *

R. N. Q.—My hands are red and there seems to be superfluous skin on the knuckles which certainly does not improve the appearance of them. What would you advise me to do?

A.—The condition of your hands may be due to having them in hot water a great deal. Try washing them with castile soap and warm water and at night apply mutton tallow or a good cold cream.

Good Night Stories

By Blanche Silver

Illustrated by Neva Harrison

DOTTY MEETS A QUEER LITTLE HUNTER.

DOTTY sat down under the evergreen and watched the dear little bird that flitted from one branch to another. She was so afraid of disturbing the little fellow that she scarcely breathed.

The birdling spying her, tipped his head, first to one side and then to the other. Then he chuckled merrily and hopped down to a branch right over Dotty's head and bowed very politely.

"How-do-you-do, Squeedee," he twittered.

Dotty turned around—sure enough, there by her side, stood the tiny elfin.

"Oh, Squeedee!" she laughed, shaking the little elfin's hand. "I'm so glad to see you."

"So am I, Squeedee," said the birdling. "I didn't know whether Dotty was going to harm me or not."

"Indeed she wouldn't do that," laughed Squeedee. "Dotty meet Happy Crossbill."

The bird bowed again and twittered politely as Squeedee went on.

"Why, Dotty is one of the best friends you birds have! I guess she wondered what you were and what you were doing."

"Squeedee's right!" Dotty exclaimed. "My curiosity got the better of me that time. I don't believe I've ever seen one of your kind so close before. If it isn't impolite, may I ask how any one ever came to give such a pretty fellow such a queer name?"

"Squeedee's Right!"

"Certainly! Certainly!" twittered Happy Crossbill. "You may ask, but I guess Squeedee will have to answer, unless it's because my bill is really crossed. Do you suppose that's the reason, Squeedee?"

"Of course it is!" replied the elfin.

Dotty laughed when she noticed for the first time that Happy Crossbill's bill really was crossed.

"No wonder they call you Crossbill!" Dotty exclaimed. "And if I were you I'd be glad that my name came from the shape of my bill rather than from my disposition.

"They couldn't do that," Squeedee laughed, "because he's anything but cross."

"Why should I be cross?" Happy Crossbill asked. "I have all the food I want to eat, and I don't have to fly down out of these evergreens, if I don't want to. You see, I'm one of the birds that feed on seeds. I prefer the evergreen seeds and I guess my bill has to be crossed so as to be able to reach down into the cones to get them out.

"The only other bird I know that has a bill like mine is Polly Parrot. But she dresses in green and, as you see, I prefer a dull red suit. But, gracious goodness! here I stand gossiping and time is flying, so if you'll excuse me, I'll take my leave."

And before either Squeedee or Dotty could say another word, the dear little bird flew out of the evergreen tree away across the fields.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

"Everything About the House Helps to Make the Home"

By WANDA EARTON

How to Make Little Labor Savers Help a Lot.

ANYTHING that takes the drudgery out of household tasks interests the woman who is striving to do her work with as little friction and as rapidly as it can be done. In large buying centers, new things with this end in view are constantly appearing but it takes a little time for them to penetrate to the smaller markets. If we know about them however, they may sometimes be procured by letter long before they can be purchased near home.

Some families use a great many chopped onions in their cookery and therefore, will gladly welcome a certain clever little device that has a wee board covered with a heavy glass tumbler, which, in turn has a nickel cover through which a plunger knob protrudes. Little knives attached are worked up and down by the plunger to mince the onion placed on the board below. The glass keeps the onion juice from rising to the point of drawing tears as the onion is chopped. This device is inexpensive and very easily washed.

A real helper that would find a welcome in all homes is the new vegetable washer. It is shaped like a tin pan but is perforated all over. It has a handle at either side and the cover has a perforated disc in the center with a small funnel top. The vegetables are placed in the washer, the cover is put on, the water is started running into the funnel and it does the work of cleaning the vegetables in the washer, the water meantime flowing into the sink and off. The water, striking the perforated disc, creates a spray, which makes it unnecessary to push the vegetables about, for all parts of the vegetables are reached perfectly by the spray itself. Washing vegetables makes one's hands look badly. By doing this work, the washer does away with all that. Besides, it may be used to set in a pot to fit as a steamer to sterilize baby bottles or to boil puddings. Best of all, it is modest in price.

One of the biggest inventions, both labor saving and hand saving, is stainless steel. Why did no one ever think of it before? How many hours it would have saved our great-grandmothers and grandmothers. Modern knives and forks used in acid fruit paring, onion peeling, potato paring and other homely jobs, come through the ordeal without a stain and odorless. When washed and wiped dry, they are as good as new. All shaped knives from the carver to the vegetable knife may be had in stainless steel, the handles varying with th price of the knife.

A temptation assails the housewife who lingers in the glazed pottery department of one of the large shops, nowadays. Green, blue, Dutch or mandarin shades, Havana brown, yellow and gray, with or without nickel trim as the case may be, make her choice difficult.

The shape of the dishes are fascinating, any of these dishes are quite suitable to send to the table with their contents undisturbed. They are sure to call forth favorable comment from the guests and add a touch of real hominess to the table. Liking for pottery is one of our primitive instincts. Every nation and tribe in the world seemingly starts its career by making pottery of some sort. And strange to say, upon investigation we find that we have evolved little that is more beautiful in decoration than that made by some of the earliest tribes with the most crude facilities for doing the work. Much peasant pottery has found its way to our markets and adds colorful note to the display.

One cannot pass a vacuum freezer without looking over her shoulder with a nod of approval, for they are such a certain labor saver. Most families enjoy frozen dainties and now they may be had with the least imaginable amount of trouble. An ice-bag of heavy canvas with a wooden mallet makes it easy to prepare ice and the freezer once packed and filled works while you sew, cook or nap.

Diary of a Fashion Model

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

She Describes a Stunning Coat for Sports Wear.

TO-DAY Pam and I spent the time we were out after luncheon wandering up and down Madison avenue.

"There are so many cunning little shops on this street it is a pleasure just to walk along and gaze in," Pam commented.

"Yes," I agreed. "It makes no difference whether they're things for the house or clothes or shoes, or what, they are all right here."

"I've never seen so many decorators' shops in any one place," I commented.

"You can glean any number of clever ideas about furnishing by just looking in the windows," Pam said.

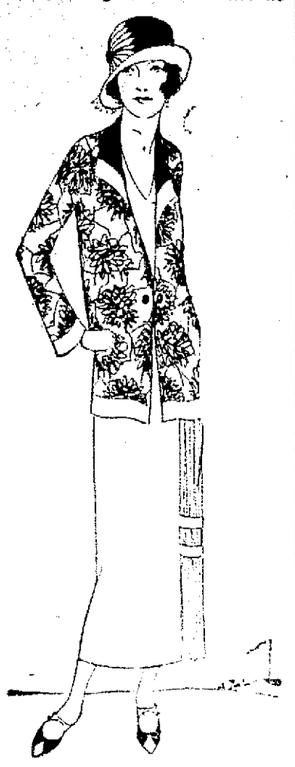
"Such as that adorable painted wood book rack," I added.

We stopped to look in the windows of a decorator's shop where there was a lovely hanging bookshelf.

"Or this sports outfit in the next window, if it's a question of clothes," Pam said.

I followed the direction of her gaze, and saw that the window contained several smart outfits.

"I know you must mean that unusual black and white one," I said.



This Lovely Coat Is of Black and White Cotton Crepe. The Skirt Is White Crepe.

"Yes, I think it is the most interesting in the windows."

We drew as close as possible to the plate-glass window to see what the coat material was.

"Crepe," Pam announced.

"I approve of the smart one-button idea and the becoming collar lined with black satin," Pam said.

"And please notice the unusual skirt," I said.

It was of white crepe and a pleated panel extended down one side and was held close to the skirt by extending through two slits of the material.

"The hat shown with it is very nice, too," I commented.

It was a small affair with a black Milan crown, a brim of white felt and a white grosgrain cockade at the side.

"Printed things are very good for sports," I said.

"Yes, you should see that adorable new black and white frock Madame has designed for herself," Pam told me. "It is figured crepe, and plain white crepe makes the scarf collar and deep cuffs."

"I want to make a little figured cotton frock for myself," I confided to Pam.

"What colors?" she asked.

"Oh, something very gay," I answered. "Perhaps red and white."

"I have some lovely printed cotton, all red and yellow and white," Pam said. "We must plan them together some time."

Advice to Girls By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl in my teens. I am deeply in love with a young man who is two years older than myself. We have been going together for about one year, and I think that he dearly loves me. He has asked me to be his wife. I would gladly accept him but I think that we both are two young to marry. He comes to see me every other night. He tells me that I am the only girl for him.

SNOWDRIFT.

SNOWDRIFT: I think you are a very wise girl to realize that you are too young to think of marriage. Just wait for awhile and if your feelings remain the same in the meantime, put all serious thoughts from your mind and enjoy your youth, for you are only young once and it is the happiest time of your life.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I have a young man with all my heart and soul. We are engaged, although we do not intend to be married for several years. He doesn't go with other girls and I don't go with other young men. He says he loves me dearly and always gives me all of his attention when we are together. But sometimes he promises to call me and doesn't and he also does not do things which I ask him, which are all for his own good. He has asked me to do several things, which I have always done. I am almost convinced, because of this, that he doesn't love me because I think any young man can tell a girl he loves her, but it is the smaller things that count.

We have been going together steadily for over a year and have never had a disagreement. How can I tell whether he really loves me?

My mother says that if I don't stop crying over him she is going to send me away to school, and that would break my heart.

DOWNHEARTED.

DOWNHEARTED: I think your mother is very wise in saying she will send you away to school. Why not go? For you are entirely too young to be thinking of love and marriage. You will find that even a few months in a different environment, a change of scene and meeting new people will greatly change your ideas. By so doing mother wishes you to and you will find greater happiness and contentment.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a married woman, twenty years old. I have a small baby. Indeed my husband is jealous. He seems perfectly all right if he can go out by himself and knows I am home, but when I go anywhere he always has a frown. Sometimes I go to some place of amusement. He thinks I should just go there and look on and not speak a word to any one, and yet he will not go with me.

BLUE EYES.

BLUE EYES: Help your husband to overcome his jealousy by proving to him your sweetness and your loyalty. Tell him that you wish he would accompany you when you go to the theatre or movies, as it would increase your enjoyment to have him with you. And show him that it does.

If you mean that he objects to people of your acquaintance to whom you may talk, just try to please him and he will gradually lose such perfect confidence in you that his objections will cease. Be patient with him and kind and above all, don't nag and quarrel.

Try to keep your temper always and you can win him to your way of thinking, I know. It's worth trying, if only for the sake of that pretty baby of yours.

Brief Stories of the Men and Women Who Led the Way

By MARK STUYVESANT

What Watt Really Did to Give Us the Steam-Engine.

JAMES WATT, as a boy, watching a kettle steaming on the hearth, plugging up the snout and discovering that the steam could lift the cover of the kettle, is a favorite tale to describe the coming into being of the steam-engine.

It may be true, but Watt didn't discover the lifting power of steam. This has been known through the ages. But when he was a grown man, after years of experiments, Watt invented the first really practical steam-engine.

It is believed that the ancient Egyptians understood steam power and made use of it to move huge blocks of stone. Savants of the Middle Ages experimented with it.

Watt found actually at work pumping water out of mines in Cornwall a clumsy, cumbersome steam affair invented by Thomas Newcomen, and Newcomen, himself, had simply improved on existing devices.

Few things have been created out of nothing in this world. Most great inventions are the result of long development and experimenting by various persons and in various ages.

What James Watt did do, and it was the greatest contribution to science of the eighteenth century, was to invent the modern condensing steam-engine. The Newcomen engine wasted about nine-tenths of the steam created by a vast amount of fuel. Watt's separate condenser resulted in all his steam being put to work. It was the correct principle for a steam-engine, and though engines have been tremendously developed since the days of Watt, his principle remains unchanged.

James Watt was born in Scotland in 1736. His father was in poor circumstances and the boy was early thrown on his own resources. He arrived in London at the age of nineteen and apprenticed himself to James Morgan, a philosophical instrument-maker. Soon Watt's health gave out and he returned to Scotland.

He repaired some astronomical instruments for the professors in Glasgow College and they took an interest in the boy, who was unusually intelligent. John Black, the lecturer on chemistry, and incidentally the discoverer of latent heat, became Watt's friend, and John Robison, then a student, but afterward the professor of natural philosophy at Edinburg, struck up an intimacy with him.

Little James Watt Watched the Cover Rise.

It happened that a model of Newcomen's steam-engine, which formed part of the college's equipment of scientific instruments, was given to Watt to repair, and the inventor of the modern steam engine had a chance to discover the weaknesses of this affair and to think about remedying them.

Watt relates that he was taking a walk one Sunday afternoon on Glasgow Green when the idea flashed through his mind that if steam were condensed in a vessel distinct from the cylinder, it would be practical to make the temperature of condensation low and still keep the cylinder hot.

This idea revolutionized the world and it occurred to him in 1765, ten years before the Battle of Bunker Hill. It was three or four years before Watt found capital to develop his engine completely and it was ten years longer before it was generally accepted as a great invention.

The Watt steam-engine, it must be understood, was not a locomotive. It was a pumping engine and its chief use was in mines and to provide power for factories. Later on it was suggested that the engine could be used as a motive power in stage coaches, as railroads had not been thought of. But Watt, curiously enough, could not see this development of his engine.

Watt so hated the idea of steam replacing horses that late in life he inserted a clause in the lease of his house that no steam-carriage should be allowed to approach it. He died in 1736.

HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kembie

FRIDAY, MAY 2.

Although there are many auguries for favorable conditions among this day's stellar activities, yet the hostile place of Saturn, in opposition with Luna, compels the forecast of obstruction and disappointment. There may be some opportunity for change, removal or journey and these opportunities may present a favorable aspect, yet formidable obstacles may arise to prevent their acceptance. New contracts may offer and the mind may be found keen and sagacious. Saturn, however, may prove unfriendly and difficult to circumvent. In heart and home affairs, conditions may be happier.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of perplexity, in which many favorable openings may meet with astral opposition. In heart and home affairs, there should be much happiness. The health should receive attention. A child born on this day will be clever, talented, original and should be generally fortunate, although it may have many difficulties to surmount.

WHEELER REPLIES TO COLUMBIA PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON, May 1—"A man who shows such ignorance of the constitution and the duties of citizenship should be starting to college rather than heading a great university," declared Wayne B. Wheeler, generalissimo of the Anti-Saloon League, today in a scathing attack on Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, who startled the country a few days ago with a vehement criticism of prohibition.

The healthy look that
DR. CALDWELL'S
SYRUP PEPSIN
Gives is Natures Own

Ladies! This Beats Cosmetics

GOOD health cannot be camouflaged by powder and rouge. The eyes will tell. That sparkle and clearness that denote good health will not be there if you are constipated. Mrs. Clara Proctor of Pottersville, Mich., had been told by doctors she had this and that disease, and one advised an operation, but she knew she had been constipated all her life so first tried Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. She avoided the operation and now feels better than she ever did. Likewise Mrs. William Appleton of Eddington, Pa., who was badly constipated and now looks her best again after using Syrup Pepsin.

On Sale for 30 Years

Intelligent women are realizing that health and mere outward complexion are two different things, and more and more are taking Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Over 10 million bottles were bought in drug stores last year, the largest selling liquid laxative in the world! Go to your druggist and buy a bottle. The cost is less than a cent a dose. You will see how much more effective a spoonful of Syrup Pepsin is than tablets, powders or pills, and without shock to the system.

Safe Family Laxative

Use it regularly a day before and a day after the periods. The gentle emptying of the bowels will give you relief, and lessen headaches and congestion. Take a spoonful at bed-time and see how much better you feel in the morning. It is a vegetable compound of Egyptian senna and pepsin with agreeable aromatics, and entirely safe not only for you but for the youngest child. Keep a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin constantly in the home for you or some other member of the family may need it any moment to relieve constipation, to break up fevers and colds, to clear up biliousness, indigestion, a pimple, a fever sore and other disturbances that show constipation.

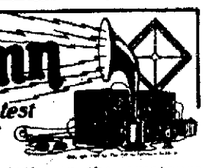
Timely Tips and Suggestions on the Latest Diagrams and Hookups—Simplified



RESISTANCE OF JOINT MUST BE LOW

Solder All Connections to Lower Resistance and Eliminate Loss

By CARLETON E. BUTLER, Radio Engineer.

When in doubt, solder. That is the best advice that can be given you if you are having trouble with your receiving set.

If you have constructed your receiver without soldering all connections you will find that it will begin to develop all sorts of noises within a short time. Don't blame your B batteries, static or the amateurs. It is within your receiver.

This comes from the fact that the connections have been exposed to the action of the air which causes a film of oxide to become deposited on the surface of the wires. This oxide has a very high resistance and makes a very poor contact at the connection.

If you have soldered all connections in your receiver it may be possible that your trouble is due to improper soldering which is often worse than no soldering. Go over every connection with a very hot iron. Hold the iron on each connection until the solder flows freely. You will not need additional flux or solder.

In fact you may have too much solder already or your trouble may be due to soldering flux that has caused a leakage across two wires. Just enough solder to hold the wires together will be quite enough. The hot iron will often solder a joint that has been only partially soldered before and is being held together by the flux.

If you have failed to solder any connections by all means do so now. You will find that each joint you solder will take a bit of the racket and noise from your receiver and will increase the volume of your receiver.

After soldering take a brush wet in gasoline and carefully go over each joint to remove any surplus flux that remains. This is important as the flux often is a conductor and will allow current to leak between the wires.

Large compasses, and marking end being equipped with rollers that form different designs, have been invented by a Frenchman for laying out flower bed borders.

MAGNESIA BEST FOR YOUR INDIGESTION

Warns Against Doping Stomach With Artificial Digestents

Most people who suffer, either occasionally or chronically from gas, sourness and indigestion, have now discontinued disagreeable diets patent foods and the use of harmful drugs, stomach tonics, medicines and artificial digestents, and instead, following the advice so often given in these columns, take a teaspoonful or two tablets of Bisurated Magnesia in a little water after meals with the result that their stomach no longer troubles them, they are able to eat as they please and they enjoy much better health. Those who use Bisurated Magnesia never dread the approach of meal time because they know this wonderful ant-acid and food corrective, which can be obtained from any good drug store, will instantly neutralize the stomach acidity, sweeten the stomach, prevent food fermentation, and without the slightest pain or discomfort. Try this plan yourself, but be certain to get pure Bisurated Magnesia especially prepared for stomach use.

PESKY BED-BUGS

(Pesky Devils Quietus) P. D. Q. is the new chemical that puts the everlasting to the Pesky bedbugs, roaches, fleas, ants and moths—impossible for the pesky devils to exist where P. D. Q. is used.

Recommendations of Hotels, Hospitals, Railroad Companies and other public institutions are a guarantee to the public that the safest, quickest and most economical way of routing the pesky insects is by the use of P. D. Q., as this chemical kills the eggs as well as the live ones, and will not stain or injure anything.

A 25c package makes a full quart, enough to kill 2 million bedbugs, roaches, moths or roaches, and also contains a patent spout to get the very pests in the hard to get at cracks and saves price. P. D. Q. can also be purchased in sealed bottles in double strength liquid form.

TODAY'S BRIGHT SPOT

"Teapot Dome" has broken into the amusement field. Shappy young thrill purveyors aren't passing up any of the advertising that has been given by the mile to the shake-up that Tea-Pot Dome has given in Washington so they are using the name to promise a shake-up to riders at the summer tent shows which are just now leaving their winter quarters.

A carnival which wintered near Martins Ferry, Belmont county, is the first to use the new device. It consists of two rows of seats fastened facing each other on a platform that is mounted on a steel central rod. The whole is surrounded by a canvas frame. While the platform carrying the seats rocks back and forth like an ocean wave, the canvas frame revolves, giving the impression that the riders are being whirled around.

In that respect, an observer says, it differs from the situation from which it gets its name. There was no illusion about the shake-up that came with the original Tea-Pot Dome.

CHAUNCEY—Mrs. Nancy Bean, teacher in the Chauncey schools, has been held for the grand jury on the charge of assaulting two young Catholic boys in her school. It is claimed that the teacher punished these boys when they attempted to leave the school room during the reading of the Protestant Bible.

OTTAWA—Charles Shank, Putnam county murderer, may quit the penitentiary for a while to be brot back to Putnam county to testify in an action in common pleas court in which his brother is suing the county commissioners for $1000 offered as reward for his capture. The petition says that county commissioners offered, at two different times, rewards of $500 each for the capture of the murderer of Mrs. William Tenwalde, wife of a Kladia farmer, her daughter Olivia, and her nephew, Lawrence Tenwalde. Walter Shank, the murderer's brother, claims that on September 12 he induced his brother to surrender. He was tried and convicted of the murder of Mrs. Tenwalde.

YORKVILLE—The first arrest under Attorney General Crabbe's ruling that a deputy marshal must be a resident of the town in which he is appointed to serve is expected to be made following the arrest here of Calvin Johnson of Tiltonville on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. Johnson is a member of a former Smithfield dry-raiding crew that frequently visited this town. When the attorney general ordered all such men who worked for fees only discharged by the state prohibition enforcement department, Johnson continued working as a deputy marshal of Smithfield. Local officers arrested him because he carried a gun here.

ST. CLAIRSVILLE—Belmont county council of the American Legion has appointed a committee to investigate the character of applications for citizenship. This action was taken after several men who had been convicted of various offences were granted the right to become citizens. In the future, officials say, the Legion will protest against granting papers to such persons.

OBERLIN—William C. Wallace, expelled freshman at Oberlin College, was apprehended at Lorain when five of his former roommates missed their watches. Wallace was expelled for thefts in the Men's Building.

WELLINGTON—Principal Arthur W. Shields is named superintendent of local schools, succeeding Supt. Kerr, who goes to Martins Ferry. Supt. Maston of Martins Ferry resigned to become superintendent at Elyria.

LOGAN—The court of appeals has held against Fred Keppe, former mayor, charged with possessing liquor and heavily fined after dry officers found 55 quarts of whiskey in his private office. The state charged that the liquor was taken from a bootlegger and later moved by the mayor to his own office.

POMEROY—Troubles still pile up in the case of Henry Dyke, who killed himself after burning his parents' home and cutting his daughter from his will with $5. Now the aged parents have brot suit to collect from the son's estate for the loss of their home, its contents and the farm buildings, and the daughter will contest this action as the will has been set aside.

MURRAY CITY—The Hocking county Health Department has been asked to help check an epidemic of scarlet fever which has broken out among the younger children of this town. Almost a dozen cases have developed within a few days, and a strict quarantine is now being observed.

Hoover to Call Radio Meeting at Washington

Object is to Reach Vountary Agreement to Check Interference, Knotty Problem

By ROBERT S. THORNBURG

WASHINGTON, May 2.—The value and efficiency of the estimated 5,000,000 radio receiving sets in the United States is menaced unless broadcasters reach a new voluntary agreement to check interference.

This was learned from Secretary of Commerce Hoover today, who announced that, regardless of passage of radio bills in congress he will call a radio conference within the next few months.

Broadcasters, manufacturers, scientists, government radio experts and amateurs will be asked to assemble in Washington for a national conference voluntary regulations and eliminate situations that congressional legislation cannot reach.

Secretary Hoover said that he would await action of congress on radio legislation in order to determine the steps regarded as necessary to save what has become one of the greatest of American pastimes.

What the radio station will be five years from now Hoover admitted was a serious problem which he would not attempt to anticipate.

Practically all available wave lengths that will serve the average commercial receiving set have been distributed to broadcasters. A rapid increase in the applications for permits to operate broadcasting stations has been noted at the department of commerce. Fourteen new stations were recently licensed in New York City alone.

Adding to the interference caused by licensed stations, thousands of amateurs thruout the country have gone into the unauthorized broadcasting business and with their station to station calls have thoroughly complicated the situation.

ONE THIN WOMAN GAINED 10 POUNDS IN 22 DAYS

Skinny Men Can Do the Same

All weak men and women,
All nervous men and women,
All skinny men and women
Can grow stronger, healthier and take on weight in 30 days by just taking McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets four times a day—as easy to take as candy.

And what a hit these flesh producing tablets have made—every druggist is selling more and more of them every day.

Everybody knows that nasty-tasting, evil-smelling Cod Liver Oil is chock full of vitamines and is a wonderful flesh producer and strength creator.

But who wants to swallow the horrible stuff when these wonderful tablets—McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets—are just as good and so easy to take.

A box of 60 tablets for 60 cents—and if any thin man or women don't gain at least 5 pounds in 30 days—money back. Ask Wimmer-Arnold Co., Siegrist & Williams, Page & Lorenz or any good druggist anywhere.

PIG IS SMARTEST OF FARM ANIMALS

Give the pig a full dinner pail filled with a variety of victuals and he can be trusted more readily than any other farm animal to select the ingredients best for him. Psychologists have proved the pig to be the most food-wise animal on the farm, say Experiment Station authorities.

Is it possible that a pig can beat the average man in this matter of selecting a proper diet? It may satisfy man's sense of superiority to find that the pig will make mistakes. Animal husbandry men at the Ohio Experiment Station have found that a pig in a cafeteria of his own may fail to take minerals in sufficient quantities to meet his needs for proper growth and development.

Pigs self-fed a ration of corn, soybean oilmeal, and minerals separately do not seem to apreciate just what are the optimum amounts of these feeds, including minerals. Consequently a large number of pigs of one group so fed became afflicted with rickets, while hand-feeding another lot of pigs the same feeds mixed according to the best judgment of the investigators prevented such disaster.

A metal tip to fit over a spark plug to prevent oil fouling it has been invented.

Have You Piles?

Then You Have Something to Learn

Thousands who have piles have not learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with internal medicine. Neither cutting nor any amount of treatment with ointments and suppositories will remove the cause.

Bad circulation causes piles. There is a complete stagnation of blood in the lower bowel and a weakening of the parts. Dr. J. S. Leonhardt was first to find the remedy. His prescription, HEM-ROID, is now sold by all druggists. Dr. Leonhardt tried it in 1000 cases with the marvelous record of success in 98 per cent and then decided it should be sold under a rigid money-back guarantee.

Don't waste any more time with outside applications. Get a package of HEM-ROID from Wimmer-Arnold Co. today. It has given safe and lasting relief to thousands and should do the same for you—it seldom fails.

Wheeler, generalissimo of the Anti-Saloon League, today in a scathing attack on Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, who startled the country a few days ago with a vehement criticism of prohibition.

The healthy look that
DR. CALDWELL'S
SYRUP PEPSIN
Gives is Natures Own

Ladies! This Beats Cosmetics

GOOD health cannot be camouflaged by powder and rouge. The eyes will tell. That sparkle and clearness that denote good health will not be there if you are constipated. Mrs. Clara Proctor of Pottersville, Mich., had been told by doctors she had this and that disease, and one advised an operation, but she knew she had been constipated all her life so first tried Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. She avoided the operation and now feels better than she ever did. Likewise Mrs. William Appleton of Eddington, Pa., who was badly constipated and now looks her best again after using Syrup Pepsin.

On Sale for 30 Years

Intelligent women are realizing that health and mere outward complexion are two different things, and more and more are taking Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Over 10 million bottles were bought in drug stores last year, the largest selling liquid laxative in the world! Go to your druggist and buy a bottle. The cost is less than a cent a dose. You will see how much more effective a spoonful of Syrup Pepsin is than tablets, powders or pills, and without shock to the system.

Safe Family Laxative

Use it regularly a day before and a day after the periods. The gentle emptying of the bowels will give you relief, and lessen headaches and congestion. Take a spoonful at bed-time and see how much better you feel in the morning. It is a vegetable compound of Egyptian senna and pepsin with agreeable aromatics, and entirely safe not only for you but for the youngest child. Keep a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin constantly in the home for you or some other member of the family may need it any moment to relieve constipation, to break up fevers and colds, to clear up biliousness, indigestion, a pimple, a fever sore and other disturbances that show constipation.

RESISTANCE OF JOINT MUST BE LOW

Solder All Connections to Lower Resistance and Eliminate Loss

By CARLETON E. BUTLER, Radio Engineer.

When in doubt, solder. That is the best advice that can be given you if you are having trouble with your receiving set.

If you have constructed your receiver without soldering all connections you will find that it will begin to develop all sorts of noises within a short time. Don't blame your B batteries, static or the amateurs. It is within your receiver.

This comes from the fact that the connections have been exposed to the action of the air which causes a film of oxide to become deposited on the surface of the wires. This oxide has a very high resistance and makes a very poor contact at the connection.

If you have soldered all connections in your receiver it may be possible that your trouble is due to improper soldering which is often worse than no soldering. Go over every connection with a very hot iron. Hold the iron on each connection until the solder flows freely. You will not need additional flux or solder.

In fact you may have too much solder already or your trouble may be due to soldering flux that has caused a leakage across two wires. Just enough solder to hold the wires together will be quite enough. The hot iron will often solder a joint that has been only partially soldered before and is being held together by the flux.

If you have failed to solder any connections by all means do so now. You will find that each joint you solder will take a bit of the racket and noise from your receiver and will increase the volume of your receiver.

After soldering take a brush wet in gasoline and carefully go over each joint to remove any surplus flux that remains. This is important and as the flux often is a conductor and will allow current to leak between the wires.

Large compasses, and marking end being equipped with rollers that form different designs, have been invented by a Frenchman for laying out flower bed borders.

MAGNESIA BEST FOR YOUR INDIGESTION

Warns Against Doping Stomach With Artificial Digestents

Most people who suffer, either occasionally or chronically from gas, sourness and indigestion, have now discontinued disagreeable diets patent foods and the use of harmful drugs, stomach tonics, medicines and artificial digestents, and instead, following the advice so often given in these columns, take a teaspoonful or two tablets of Bisurated Magnesia in a little water after meals with the result that their stomach no longer troubles them, they are able to eat as they please and they enjoy much better health. Those who use Bisurated Magnesia never dread the approach of meal time because they know this wonderful ant-acid and food corrective, which can be obtained from any good drug store, will instantly neutralize the stomach acidity, sweeten the stomach, prevent food fermentation, and without the slightest pain or discomfort. Try this plan yourself, but be certain to get pure Bisurated Magnesia especially prepared for stomach use.

(Pesky Devils Quietus) P. D. Q. is the new chemical that puts the everlasting to the Pesky bedbugs, roaches, fleas, ants and moths—impossible for the pesky devils to exist where P. D. Q. is used.

Recommendations of Hotels, Hospitals, Railroad Companies and other public institutions are a guarantee to the public that the safest, quickest and most economical way of ridding the pesky insects is by the use of P. D. Q. as this chemical kills the eggs as well as the live ones, and will not injure the clothing.

A 50c package makes a full quart, enough to kill a million bedbugs, roaches, moths or roaches—and also contains a patent spout to get the eggs nests in the hard-to-get-at cracks and saves price. P. D. Q. can also be purchased in sealed bottles, double strength, liquid form.

TODAY'S BRIGHT SPOT

"Teapot Dome" has broken into the amusement field. Snappy young thrill purveyors aren't passing up any of the advertising that has been given by the mile to the shake-up that Tea-Pot Dome has given in Washington so they are using the name to promise a shake-up to riders at the summer tent shows which are just now leaving their winter quarters.

A carnival which wintered near Martins Ferry, Belmont county, is the first to use the new device. It consists of two rows of seats fastened facing each other on a platform that is mounted on a steel central rod. The whole is surrounded by a canvas frame. While the platform carrying the seats rocks back and forth like an ocean wave, the canvas frame revolves, giving the impression that the riders are being whirled around.

In that respect, an observer says, it differs from the situation from which it gets its name. There was no illusion about the shake-up that came with the original Tea-Pot Dome.

CHAUNCEY—Mrs. Nancy Bean, teacher in the Chauncey schools, has been held for the grand jury on the charge of assaulting two young Catholic boys in her school. It is claimed that the teacher punished these boys when they attempted to leave the school room during the reading of the Protestant Bible.

OTTAWA—Charles Shank, Putnam county murderer, may quit the penitentiary for a while to be brot back to Putnam county to testify in an action in common pleas court in which his brother is suing the county commissioners for $1000 offered as reward for his capture. The petition says that county commissioners offered at two different times, rewards of $500 each for the capture of the murderer of Mrs. William Tenwalde, wife of a Kladia farmer, her daughter Olivia, and her nephew, Lawrence Tenwalde. Walter Shank, the murderer's brother, claims that on September 12 he induced his brother to surrender. He was tried and convicted of the murder of Mrs. Tenwalde.

YORKVILLE—The first arrest under Attorney General Crabbe's ruling that a deputy marshal must be a resident of the town in which he is appointed to serve is expected to be made following the arrest here of Calvin Johnson of Tiltonville on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. Johnson is a member of a former Smithfield dry-raiding crew that frequently visited this town. When the attorney general ordered all such men who worked for fees only discharged by the state prohibition enforcement department, Johnson continued working as a deputy marshal of Smithfield. Local officers arrested him because he carried a gun here.

ST. CLAIRSVILLE—Belmont county council of the American Legion has appointed a committee to investigate the character of applications for citizenship. This action was taken after several men who had been convicted of various offences were granted the right to become citizens. In the future, officials say, the Legion will protest against granting papers to such persons.

OBERLIN—William C. Wallace, expelled freshman at Oberlin College, was apprehended at Lorain when five of his former roommates missed their watches. Wallace was expelled for thefts in the Men's Building.

WELLINGTON—Principal Arthur W. Shields is named superintendent of local schools, succeeding Supt. Kerr, who goes to Martins Ferry. Supt. Maston of Martins Ferry resigned to become superintendent at Elyria.

LOGAN—The court of appeals has held against Fred Koppe, former mayor, charged with possessing liquor and heavily fined after dry officers found 35 quarts of whiskey in his private office. The state charged that the liquor was taken from a bootlegger and later moved by the mayor to his own office.

POMEROY—Troubles still pile up in the case of Henry Dyke, who killed himself after burning his parents' home and cutting his daughter from his will with $5. Now the aged parents have brot suit to collect from the son's estate for the loss of their home, its contents and the farm buildings, and the daughter will contest this action as the will has been set aside.

MURRAY CITY—The Hocking county Health Department has been asked to help check an epidemic of scarlet fever which has broken out among the younger children of this town. Almost a dozen cases have developed within a few days, and a strict quarantine is now being observed.

Hoover to Call Radio Meeting at Washington

Object is to Reach Vountary Agreement to Check Interference, Knotty Problem

By ROBERT S. THORNBURG

WASHINGTON, May 2.—The value and efficiency of the estimated 5,000,000 radio receiving sets in the United States is menaced unless broadcasters reach a new voluntary agreement to check interference.

This was learned from Secretary of Commerce Hoover today, who announced that, regardless of passage of radio bills in congress he will call a radio conference within the next few months.

Broadcasters, manufacturers, scientists, government radio experts and amateurs will be asked to assemble in Washington for a national conference; voluntary regulations and eliminate situations that congressional legislation cannot reach.

Secretary Hoover said that he would await action of congress on radio legislation in order to determine the steps regarded as necessary to save what has become one of the greatest of American pastimes.

What the radio station will be five years from now Hoover admitted was a serious problem which he would not attempt to anticipate.

Practically all available wave lengths that will serve the average commercial receiving set have been distributed to broadcasters. A rapid increase in the applications for permits to operate broadcasting stations has been noted at the department of commerce. Fourteen new stations were recently licensed in New York City alone.

Adding to the interference caused by licensed stations, thousands of amateurs thruout the country have gone into the unauthorized broadcasting business and with their station to station calls have thoroughly complicated the situation.

ONE THIN WOMAN GAINED 10 POUNDS IN 22 DAYS

Skinny Men Can Do the Same

All weak men and women,
All nervous men and women,
All skinny men and women
Can grow stronger, healthier and take on weight in 30 days by just taking McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets four times a day—as easy to take as candy.

And what a hit these flesh producing tablets have made—every druggist is selling more and more of them every day.

Everybody knows that nasty-tasting, evil-smelling Cod Liver Oil is chock full of vitamines and is a wonderful flesh producer and strength creator.

But who wants to swallow the horrible stuff when these wonderful tablets—McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets—are just as good and so easy to take.

A box of 60 tablets for 60 cents—and if any thin man or women don't gain at least 5 pounds in 30 days—money back. Ask Wimmer-Arnold Co., Siegrist & Williams, Page & Lorenz or any good druggist anywhere.

PIG IS SMARTEST OF FARM ANIMALS

Give the pig a full dinner pail filled with a variety of victuals and he can be trusted more readily than any other farm animal to select the ingredients best for him. Psychologists have proved the pig to be the most food-wise animal on the farm, say Experiment Station authorities.

Is it possible that a pig can beat the average man in this matter of selecting a proper diet? It may satisfy man's sense of superiority to find that the pig will make mistakes. Animal husbandry men at the Ohio Experiment Station have found that a pig in a cafeteria of his own may fail to take minerals in sufficient quantities to meet his needs for proper growth and development.

Pigs self-fed a ration of corn, soybean oilmeal, and minerals separately do not seem to apreciate just what are the optimum amounts of these feeds, including minerals. Consequently a large number of pigs of one group so fed became afflicted with rickets, while hand-feeding another lot of pigs the same feeds mixed according to the best judgment of the investigators prevented such disaster.

A metal tip to fit over a spark plug to prevent oil fouling it has been invented.

Have You Piles?

Then You Have Something to Learn

Thousands who have piles have not learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with internal medicine. Neither cutting nor any amount of treatment with ointments and suppositories will remove the cause.

Bad circulation causes piles. There is a complete stagnation of blood in the lower bowel and a weakening of the parts. Dr. J. S. Leonhardt was first to find the remedy. His prescription, HEM-ROID, is now sold by all druggists. Dr. Leonhardt tried it in 1000 cases with the marvelous record of success in 98 per cent and then decided it should be sold under a rigid money-back guarantee.

Don't waste any more time with outside applications. Get a package of HEM-ROID from Wimmer-Arnold Co. today. It has given safe and lasting relief to thousands and should do the same for you—it seldom fails.
